Baker, Billy
WE NEED TO HANG OUT: A Memoir of Making Friends
Hardcover * January 2021

JFA
Nonfiction

Beginning in the 1980s, study after study began showing that people who were more socially isolated from their friends; regardless of how healthy their family life was; were much more likely to die during a given period than their socially connected peers, even after correcting for factors like age, gender, and lifestyle choices. Loneliness was linked to an increase in cardiovascular disease and stroke and the progression of Alzheimer's. One study found that it was as deadly as smoking. Billy Baker had a full-time job, a loving marriage, and two darling children when he realized that something crucial was missing from his life: his friends. At the age of forty, he was becoming just another statistic in a modern loneliness epidemic; studies show that between 40 and 50 percent of Americans report feeling alone or isolated, especially older men, who tend more than women to let their close friendships lapse as they age. After Billy's story about this invisible crisis for The Boston Globe Magazine touched millions of people, he devoted himself to a bold mission to salvage his friendships and pave the way for men (and women) everywhere to improve their relationships old and new. From planning weekly hang-outs with his two best buddies to organizing an impromptu "Ditch Day" for dozens of his high school classmates, Billy began experimenting with ways to keep in touch with his friends no matter how hectic all their lives could be. Bursting with humor, candor, and charm, We Need to Hang Out is the story of one middle-aged man's quest to renew the art of friendship and set an example for lonely people everywhere.

Billy Baker is a reporter for the Boston Globe. A native of South Boston, he is a graduate of Boston Latin School, Tulane University, and the Columbia Journalism School. In 2017, he received the Deborah Howell Award for Writing Excellence from the American Society of News Editors. In 2014, he was a member of the Globe team that received the Pulitzer Prize for coverage of the Boston Marathon bombings.

LEONORA IN THE MORNING LIGHT
Hardcover * April 2021

JH
Fiction

London, 1937: Leonora Carrington is a twenty-year-old wild child on the brink of independence and the discovery of her own creative powers as a painter. When she falls in love with Max Ernst, a married artist twenty-six years her senior, she cuts ties with her upper-class family and heads to Paris, where she is thrust into the vibrant, revolutionary realm of the Surrealist art movement that includes Andre Breton, Picasso, Leonor Fini and Dali. Deeply in love, Leonora and Max refuse to recognize the reality of the approaching war. When Max is imprisoned in a French internment camp for Germans and the Nazis invade France, Leonora flees to Spain, where she is locked away a Spanish asylum. In their remarkable trials, Leonora discovers a profound inner power, while Max seeks the aid of Peggy Guggenheim, who is helping "degenerate" artists to escape from the Nazis. When Max and Leonora reunite in Lisbon after a year of separation, a love triangle forms, and Leonora must make a hard choice between her art and the man she still loves. Based entirely on historical people and events, Leonora in the Morning Light is a timely, lyrical portrayal of love, war, and art, and a vital exploration of the profound and unsung creativity of the greatest Surrealists--the women artists.

Coyne, Tom
A COURSE CALLED AMERICA
Hardcover * May 2021

JFA
Nonfiction

In this conclusion to Tom Coyne's trilogy of epic golf adventures succeeding two beloved New York Times bestsellers A Course Called Ireland and A Course Called Scotland, the author delivers a rollicking love letter to American golf as he plays his way across the United States in search of the great American golf course. For much of his adult life, bestselling author Tom Coyne has been chasing a golf ball around the globe. When he was in college, studying abroad in London, he entered lotteries for afternoon tea times across the United Kingdom, grabbing his clubs and jumping on trains to St. Andrews as his friends partied in Amsterdam; later, he traveled around Ireland, chased pros throughout the Australian Tour, and attended the notoriously grueling PGA Tour Qualifying School. Yet, as he watched the greats compete, he felt something was missing. One day, a friend asked: "Did you know there are only fifteen Brit Open courses?" Tom's immediate response was: "Let's play them." The result is A Course Called Scotland, the definitive golf and travel guide to the birthplace of the sport and home to some of the oldest and most beloved courses in the world, including St. Andrews, Stirling, Dornoch, Montrose, Dunbar, and Carnoustie. With his signature blend of storytelling, humor, history, and insight, Coyne journeys the country in search of the game's secrets, and the chance to hold one of its most coveted objects: The Claret Jug. Along the way, he discovers new and old friends, the peace and power of the green, courses well-known and rarely-played (some accessible only by boat), and, most importantly, the ultimate connection between sport and soul. It is golf as no one has attempted it before.

Coyne is the author of New York Times bestsellers A Course Called Ireland and A Course Called Scotland; Paper Tiger; and the novel A Gentleman's Game, named one of the best twenty-five sports books of all time by The Philadelphia Daily News and adopted into a motion picture starring Gary Sinise. He has written for GOLF Magazine, Sports Illustrated, The Golfer's Journal, and numerous other publications.

WATERGATE: A New History
Hardcover * November 2021

JFA
Nonfiction

In the early hours of June 17, 1972, a security guard named Frank Wills entered six words into the log book of the Watergate office complex that would change the course of history: 1:47 AM Found tape on doors; call police. Within hours, five men—Virgilio Gonzalez, Bernard Baker, James McCord, Eugenio Martinez, and Frank Sturgis—were arrested and charged with attempted burglary, as well as attempted interception of telephone and other communications. But that was hardly the end of it. Over the next two years, that one thwarted break-in would lead to more arrests, an alleged kidnapping, FBI and congressional investigations, a Senate hearing, and bombshell testimonies from the highest levels of political power that ultimately would reveal a cover-up, end a presidency, and alter our views of moral authority and leadership. Watergate defined a decade, and a nation. And yet, the story has never been told from start to finish. Now, in Watergate, award-winning journalist and bestselling author Garrett

M. Graff explores the full scope of the most influential scandal of our time, from the release of The Pentagon Papers in 1971—the first signs of trouble for the White House—and the 1972 DNC break-in to the denials, trials, hearings, and eventual downfall of the Nixon Administration three years later, the implications of which we still feel today. Along the way, he introduces a vibrant cast of characters, including the President and his doomed inner circle, special prosecutors Archibald Cox and Leon Jaworski, the Congressional committees led by Sam Ervin and Peter Rodino, renegade reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, and Mark Felt, an Associate Director of the FBI who would conceal his identity for decades behind the name "Deep Throat." Grippingly told, deeply researched, and featuring new details gathered from the 2013 release of the final Nixon Tapes, Watergate is the defining, behind-the-scenes look at the era that changed the course of American politics—and life—as we knew it.

Garrett M. Graff, a distinguished magazine journalist and historian, has spent more than a dozen years covering politics, technology, and national security. Today, he serves as the director of the Aspen Institute's cybersecurity and technology program, and is a contributor to WIREd, Longreads, and CNN. He's written for publications from Esquire to Rolling Stone to the New York Times, and edited two of Washington's most prestigious magazines, Washingtonian and POLITICO Magazine. Graff is the author of multiple books, including The Threat Matrix: Inside Robert Mueller's FBI, the national bestseller Raven Rock: The Story of the U.S. Government's Secret Plan to Save Itself--While the Rest of Us Die, and the New York Times bestseller The Only Plane in the Sky.

HOLDING BACK THE RIVER: The Struggle Against Nature on America's Waterways JFA
Hardcover * April 2021 Nonfiction

In the tradition of John McPhee's classics about where nature and mankind meet, Holding Back the River introduces readers to the Americans who carry on the eternal battle against the savage appetites of our great rivers. The Mississippi. The Missouri. The Ohio. America's great rivers are as integral to this country as the many states named after them. Americans depend on rivers for drinking water; for nourishing their crops; for cheap bulk transportation; for hydroelectric power and more. But these benefits don't come freely—Americans have labored for generations to tame the forces of nature, and they still haven't won. The real story of the country's waterways is the story of the men and women fighting to harness them. In the first half of the 20th century, the nation spent trillions of dollars building structures to tame these rivers. Two generations have passed, and now much of what's been built is falling apart. Yet to fix what's wrong will require more than money—it will require an act of imagination, as the economy, society, and the climate have all changed, while these levees, locks, and dams have not. River management has always been a game of costs and benefits; giving up something to gain something else. As climate change gives Nature ever more advantage in her proverbial struggle with Man, however, we may have to give up more and settle for less.

Tyler J. Kelley is a journalist whose work has appeared in The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, and NewYorker.com, among other outlets.

FALLING
Hardcover * July 2021

JFA
Fiction

It begins like any other flight from Los Angeles to New York for veteran pilot Bill Hoffman and the 144 crew and passengers of Coastal Airways Flight 416. But minutes after takeoff, Bill receives an unexpected video call in the cockpit. It's from a terrorist on the ground who has invaded his home and taken his wife and children hostage, while also wiring the house with explosives. His only demand: Bill must either crash the plane or watch his family be killed. If he tells his copilot, his family will be killed. If he tells the crew, his family will be killed. If he attempts to contact the authorities, his family will be killed. And there's this: One of the passengers on the plane is a terrorist in disguise who is there to keep an eye on Bill and make sure he follows orders. Bill's response? I'm not going to crash this plane. And you're not going to kill my family.

Over the next five harrowing hours, Bill must come up with an impossible plan to protect the innocents on board and save the people he loves most. He can't do it alone, but who can he trust? Anybody could have their own agenda, from the passengers and crew to the air traffic controllers monitoring the airwaves, the FBI agents on the ground—even the fighter pilots who may or may not have to shoot down the compromised plane at the president's command. With one heart-stopping twist after another, Falling is filled with intensely researched action that never lets up from the moment the wheels leave the ground. Here is a propulsive, authentic, heart-in-your throat reading experience from a blazing new talent in the realm of popular fiction that reads like a cross between Die Hard and Sophie's Choice . . . at 30,000 feet.

T. J. Newman, a former bookseller turned flight attendant, worked for Virgin America and Alaska Airlines from 2011 to 2021. She wrote much of Falling on cross-country red-eye flights while her passengers were asleep. She lives in Phoenix, Arizona. This is her first novel.
