AMADOCA

Sofia Andrukhovych

Historical Fiction

A major, global publishing event and an internationally acclaimed, award-winning epic that interweaves the major events of Ukrainian 20th-century history—from the Stalinist repression of the 1930s, to the Holocaust, and the Russian-Ukrainian war that began in 2014—in a sweeping and inventive story that explores historical memory, identity, and forbidden love.

Located in what is now modern Ukraine, Amadoca was the largest lake in Europe. First mentioned by the Greek historian and geographer Herodotus and faithfully recreated by medieval cartographers down the centuries, it suddenly disappeared from accounts. How can large lakes, whole worlds, or entire cultures vanish without a trace? And what is left behind in their wake?

In her internationally acclaimed epic, award-winning author Sofia Andrukhovych wrestles with the horrors of her contested country's 20th century through three main eras: the Stalinist repression and "Executed Renaissance" of Ukraine's intelligentsia, the Holocaust, and the war in the Donbas that began in 2014. Through the attempts of a man injured in the Russian-Ukrainian war and the woman who believes he is her husband to reconstruct his lost memories, Amadoca is a boldly experimental novel that bridges the gap between the past and present.

Heralded as one of the most important voices in contemporary European literature, Andrukhovych dares to exhume a century's worth of history and memory in a narrative that is intimate, sweeping, complex, immersive, and inventive. An unforgettably penetrating examination of totalitarian occupation, the world order, and the nature of truth itself, Amadoca confronts our common dilemma as social beings: We must forget in order to survive, but we must remember in order to become human.

I SWORE I'D BURN THIS BOOK

Andrew Lewis Conn

Satire

An intriguing and hilarious mystery about the ultimate literary scandal, in which the son of a world-famous author is faced with the dilemma of whether to publish his father's final, unfinished work, which he had promised to destroy upon the his death.

Meet Dmitri Boris Godunov, son of Russian American literary giant Vladimir Godunov, whose rapturous, scandalous breakthrough novel secured its author's place in the literary pantheon and continues to top banned book lists a half-century after publication. But when a forthcoming biography threatens to expose his father in monstrous ways, Dmitri must decide if he should publish the unfinished novel he had promised to destroy.

Loosely inspired by the true story of Vladimir Nabokov's son, this twisty novel spans from New York to Russia to the Swiss Alps. Full of literary Easter eggs, I Swore I'd Burn This Book is both a feverish caper and a lyrical meditation on fathers and sons, our current times, and the mysteries of artistic creation.

PANIC GRASS FARM

Elizabeth Kelly

Tragicomedy

An irreverent, big-hearted, electrically original adventure, loaded with plot twists, panache, and a true love story for the ages, Panic Grass Farm takes the art of the tragicomedy to new heights—for fans of Madeline Cash, Nell Zink, and Kevin Wilson.

When Ferdia Guerin and Rosie Fagan meet as teenagers in the wildflower pasture of their small town, it's love at first sight. She's a brilliant, cherubic, aspiring writer, whose high voice belies a stubborn sense of self; he's a seemingly carefree music prodigy whose preternatural charisma hides a dark secret. And then life takes them in different directions. So when Rosie and Ferdia reunite by chance in New York City after years spent apart, just as Ferdia is about to launch into stratospheric stardom, it makes perfect sense to elope and ensure that they'll never be separated again... Until one morning, after several (mostly) blissful years of marriage, when Ferdia kisses Rosie goodbye, hops on his bike—and disappears.

The victim of a jilted ex-lover's "romantic" kidnapping attempt gone terribly awry, Ferdia wakes up on a farm in the Canadian wilderness with a serious head injury and a chain around his ankle. Surrounded by a trio of guards, each obsessed with him for their own twisted reasons, Ferdia sets himself to the familiar task of charming his way out of trouble. But when his captors turn out to be just as insatiable as the demons he's been running from for so many years, the past and present collide with a force powerful enough to eclipse everything—even music, even Rosie.

Wise and witty, animated by larger-than-life characters and sentences that shock and sing, Panic Grass Farm careens from exuberant highs to profound lows, from swanky skyscraper parties to frigid nights in a cinder block shed. Elizabeth Kelly's uncategorizable feat is alive with all that love and art makes possible, even when the light at the end of the tunnel has gone out

MEMOIR

HERE'S DONNIE!

A Memoir of Hard Knocks from Pimptown to Tinseltown
Don Reed

Memoir

From Oakland's "Pimptown" to The Tonight Show, Don Reed's unforgettable memoir is a funny, poignant story of family, resilience, and finding the courage to tell your own story.

Don Reed grew up in a version of Oakland he calls "Pimptown," a world shaped by his charismatic father, a successful pimp whose larger-than-life personality loomed over Reed's childhood. When his parents divorced, his world was turned upside down. His mother remarried, converted the family to Jehovah's Witnesses, and introduced an entirely new set of rules and expectations, leaving Reed caught between two radically different versions of life.

Through humor, storytelling, speech competitions, and his father's encouragement, Reed slowly began carving out an identity of his own. He persevered through setbacks large and small—from periods of housing insecurity while attending UCLA to disastrous performances, encounters with police, and professional betrayals—while discovering the stories only he could tell. What follows is a funny, poignant, and deeply personal memoir that traces his journey from a complicated childhood in Oakland to finding his voice as a performer, storyteller, and comedian—ultimately becoming the first Black warm-up comic in the history of The Tonight Show and building a career by saying yes to every opportunity that came his way.

AFTERGLOW

Alia Volz

Memoir

A singularly funny and moving memoir about the author's great-grandmother, who considered herself married to a ghost with whom she had ecstatic sex for 40 years until her death at 103, and the recordings she left behind—the effects of which the author follows through her eccentric family and into her own unconventional coming-of-age.

At the heart of the book is a haunting in Levittown, Long Island. That the ghost visiting Alia Volz's great-grandmother Paula was having daily ecstatic sexual encounters with her didn't make it any easier to believe. But believe it Paula did. For nearly forty years, she considered herself married to the ghost of a former lover named Ed Clayton—and even changed her legal name to Paula Long-Clayton. Paula, who lived to 103, communicated with Ed through a Ouija Board, but their primary interactions were sexual. Paula documented her supernatural romance in an audio-journal on cassette tape, which she gave to Alia on their last visit together. Alia, however, wanted nothing to do with that side of her family: not the ghost story; not her austere Grandmother, Jan, who was Paula's caretaker for many years; nor her own father Doug, who had failed Alia and her mother at key moments.

But when Alia falls in love and begins to think about starting her own family, she comes across a Sony Walkman in a thrift store with a note taped to it that read, "It works." As she listens to her great-grandmother's account six years after her death, she wrestles with this complicated and strange inheritance on her own terms. In the process, she discovers new means to think about being a woman, mother, and daughter—forever changing the way that she understands her family, and herself.

BEST SEATS IN THE HOUSE

An Uncensored Oral History of Sports Illustrated

John Walters and Adam Duerson

Sports

A landmark work—and candy for sports fans everywhere—The Best Seats in the House is a riveting, uncensored oral history of Sports Illustrated, the magazine where legendary athletes collided with freewheeling writers and photographers, and where editors led a Mad Men lifestyle, all of it a cauldron of excess, ego, money, and scandal that turned sports into an American phenomenon.

For half a century Sports Illustrated was the driving force that shaped fame and power in the sporting world. For many, the magazine was an introduction to the likes of Muhammad Ali, Joe Namath, Michael Jordan, Martina Navratilova, Tiger Woods, and LeBron James. Before the rise of ESPN and the internet, Sports Illustrated transformed athletes into cultural icons and sporting events into national obsessions, bringing readers closer than ever to the rivalries, drama, and unforgettable moments that defined a generation.

Former Sports Illustrated staffers Adam Duerson and John Walters spent a combined thirty-five years at the magazine. To produce this book, they interviewed more than four hundred writers, photographers, editors, executives, athletes, and industry insiders to narrate Sports Illustrated's rise as a massive cultural force. The Best Seats in the House also pulls back the curtain on the chaotic, swaggering culture that made Sports Illustrated legendary. Inside the Time & Life Building, brilliant writers, star photographers, and hard-charging editors battled over covers, chased scoops across continents, and lived like celebrities themselves, fueled by endless expense accounts, sprawling liquid lunches, newsroom feuds, office affairs, and a level of access and indulgence that now feels unimaginable.

Packed with humor, nostalgia, and jaw-dropping tales, The Best Seats in the House is a sweeping and scintillating portrait of the golden age of American sports—and the larger-than-life personalities who lived it.

TOM CRUISE

Jeff Benedict

Biography

From Jeff Benedict, the #1 New York Times bestselling author of Tiger Woods, comes a definitive, newsmaking, and cinematic biography of Tom Cruise—an unprecedented look at the rise, reinvention, and enduring enigma of one of the most powerful stars in Hollywood history.

For more than forty years, Tom Cruise has lived a life of unmatched spectacle and intensity. With over forty films grossing more than $11 billion worldwide, he has not only defined the modern blockbuster but reinvented what it means to be a global movie star. From Risky Business and Top Gun to Rain Man and the record-shattering Mission: Impossible franchise, Cruise's career is a masterclass in ambition, reinvention, and the relentless pursuit of perfection. Offscreen, his marriages, his faith, and his audacious stunts have fueled endless fascination—yet the man behind the mystique has remained fiercely guarded.

In this landmark biography, #1 New York Times bestselling author Jeff Benedict pulls back the curtain on Cruise's extraordinary life. Drawing on years of dogged investigation, hundreds of interviews, and unprecedented access to those who have known Cruise across every stage of his life, Benedict uncovers the forces that shaped him: the turbulent childhood in upstate New York, the early breakout roles, the rise to superstardom, and the complicated intersections of his romantic relationships, personal life, and evolving relationship with religion. He reveals the intense fascination that has both fueled Cruise's global dominance and driven him into the shadows.

BECOMING THE PARENT YOU WISH YOU HAD

August 2027

How to Raise a Well-Adjusted Adult

Robin Berman

Self-Help

Dr. Robin Berman, Associate Professor of Psychiatry at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA, founding board member of the Resnick Neuropsychiatric Hospital at UCLA, and an Advisory Board member of Matthew McConaughey's Just Keep Livin Foundation, presents a revolutionary guide to empower parents to stay calm and connected to themselves and their children even in the most stressful moments so that their approach reflects their values versus their triggers.

When your toddler melts down or your teen rolls their eyes, your brain doesn't always register a kid who missed a nap. It registers a threat. Suddenly you're not the calm, measured adult you meant to be—you're yelling, fixing, or shutting down, reacting from the child inside you instead of parenting the child in front of you. If you've felt that gut-punch of regret afterward, you are not a bad parent. You're a human one, and there is a better way.

In Becoming The Parent You Wish You Had psychiatrist and UCLA associate professor Robin Berman, MD—author of Permission to Parent and a clinician with nearly three decades of experience—offers a warm, science-backed roadmap for parenting toward your child's future, not from your past. Her central, liberating truth is this: you can't co-regulate a child from a place of dysregulation. So you parent yourself first.

At the heart of the book is a simple, repeatable neuro-hack for the hardest moments. When you feel triggered, you Name the Reflex (fight, flight, or fix), Say Your Mantra to shift from your reactive brain to your wiser one, and take Opposite Action—doing the exact opposite of what your nervous system is screaming at you to do. With this tool, you stop the spiral before it starts. Each chapter then builds toward one of the eight core traits of a well-adjusted adult: healthy boundaries, a clear-eyed view of reality, the ability to manage feelings, flexible thinking, agency, self-control, a deep sense of worthiness, and self-awareness. Along the way, you'll learn to break the inherited patterns that get passed down through generations and replace them with calm, connection, and love.

ENDING CHRONIC ILLNESS

A Revolutionary New Program to Reverse Inflammation and Heal Persistent Disease

Richard Horowitz

Health

A New York Times bestselling doctor guides you through his revolutionary approach to solving the problem of chronic illness by finding what triggers the root cause: multiple sources of inflammation. This approach addresses a wide range of common but challenging conditions including autoimmune diseases, allergies, asthma, chronic pain, long covid, chronic fatigue, multiple sclerosis, Alzheimer's dementia, autism spectrum disorder, cancer, cardiovascular disease, hormonal dysfunction, mood disorders, and more.

Anyone with a chronic illness knows it can destroy your life. Symptoms for which no doctor can find a cause, or the treatment is worse than the disease itself. The alarming truth is that while traditional medicine is good at treating most acute illnesses, it has no effective model to address chronic conditions. Richard Horowitz has made it his mission to change that.

For decades, he has been helping to heal thousands of chronically ill patients. Now he brings us his proprietary program based on the Multiple Systemic Infectious Disease Syndrome (MSIDS) Map to identify and treat a wide array of chronic conditions based on new, cutting-edge scientific research. At the heart of every chronic condition lies inflammation, but where is it coming from? The 16-point diagnostic map provides clear answers and a treatment program tailored to your specific condition. You'll find out what tests you might need, with a comprehensive list of lifestyle strategies like how to beat insomnia and reduce stress in as little as five minutes. Dr. Horowitz also takes a deep dive into scientifically proven natural solutions available over the counter, like nutritional supplements, as well as examining the pros and cons of prescription medication, both for short and long term use.

Sex & Relationships

Esther Perel's Mating in Captivity (2006; sold in more than 20 international markets) and Chris Ryan's Sex at Dawn (2010) exposed the cracks in our modern monogamy-only relationship model and unlocked the door to the rest of the relationship landscape. But neither showed us how to find our way around. In fact, more than 10 years later, in her 2017 book, The State of Affairs: Rethinking Infidelity, Perel told us "Few social scripts exist. We are all improvising."

Vrangalova wants readers to do more than just improvise. "How do we find the relationship type that's right for us, and how do we make sure we're doing it well? Science finally has some concrete answers. All humans have two basic needs: security and exploration. To survive, we need to be physically and emotionally safe and secure; to grow, we need to be able to seek new experiences, to be challenged and surprised." Vrangalova offers insights on how to pursue both.

MAKE THEM PAY

A History of the American Struggle to Tax the Rich
Jesse Eisinger

Business

How did we end up with a system that allows billionaires to pay so little income tax? In Make Them Pay, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Jesse Eisinger and his reporting partner Paul Kiel investigate the history of income tax avoidance and reveal how the system is abused today—based on the shocking tax returns of America's wealthiest people leaked to ProPublica in 2021.

In late 2020, Jesse Eisinger received an anonymous message on Signal asking for his mailing address. A few days later, he received a mysterious thumb drive containing the private tax records of America's wealthiest people, including Warren Buffett, Elon Musk, Jeff Bezos, Mark Zuckerberg, Bill Gates, Michael Bloomberg, the Kochs, and more. It was one of the greatest troves of government information ever obtained by journalists. Personal tax information is one of the most guarded secrets in the entire government. No one in the history of the country, not even the highest-ranking government officials, had ever seen what Eisinger was seeing. Eisinger enlisted his ProPublica reporting partner, Paul Kiel, and together they set out to tell the American public what the numbers meant. When considered against the almost inconceivable vastness of their wealth, the wealthiest Americans pay remarkably little tax. Some even paid zero. Nearly twenty billionaires had received COVID-19 stimulus checks, money meant to help the poor and middle class ride out the pandemic.

In Make Them Pay, Eisinger and Kiel reach back into the past to explain how we got here, zooming in on key moments, from the writing of the Constitution to the present, that shaped the trajectory of the system and made it possible for billionaires today to pay tax rates far lower than middle-income workers. The characters that emerge from this carefully selected history are varied. Politicians (founding fathers, presidents, and lawmakers) are a big part of the story, but just as important are business titans like John D. Rockefeller, Warren Buffett, and Larry Ellison. Accessible, engaging, and eye-opening, Make Them Pay reveals how we ended up with a broken tax code that forces an unnecessary squeeze on budgets for Social Security, infrastructure, education, and other priorities—and drives us further from the goal of an equitable society.

FAKE CHRISTIANS

March 2027

A Biblically Correct Guide to Breaking the Grip of Holy Hypocrites, Gospel Grifters, and Theocratic Thugs

John Fugelsang

Religion

If you've ever looked at the inflamed state of religion and politics and thought, "Jesus Christ, these people are the opposite of Jesus Christ," bestselling author John Fugelsang presents a deeply irreverent guide to 2000 years of authoritarian Christian power—the world's most successful rebrand of empire as morality.

The Jesus we meet in the Bible denounces power, violence, misogyny, and wealth, and commands his followers to welcome the stranger. But once the empire that killed Jesus took over his operation, their retrofitted form of Christianity started a funny little habit of doing whatever the Hell it wants and ignoring the man who launched the startup. This fresh history reveals how the actual teachings of Jesus have been hijacked and hate-washed ever since Constantine the Great turned the religion of "Turn the other cheek" into a machine for conquest. From the New York Times bestselling author of Separation of Church and Hate, this is a book for believers, nonbelievers, and everyone dealing with the influence of Christian nationalism.

From crusaders, conquistadors, colonizers, and confederates to modern Christian nationalists, Fake Christians teaches you to spot the pattern of the oldest con in Christianity: 1. Invoke Jesus's name to get power. 2. Once in power, do the opposite of what Jesus says. 3. If anyone points out step 2, scream about persecution.

Wielding facts, scripture, and razor-sharp humor, Fugelsang takes apart the justifications propping up the pursuit of domination in the name of Christianity. Both a guide to the Christian history you never learned and a source of renewed inspiration for the future, Fake Christians is a book about what Christianity started out as, what it became, and why it's still worth fighting for

John Fugelsang has been murdered on CSI and picketed by the Westboro Baptist Church. He's a Drama League-nominated actor, comedian, and broadcaster who's hosted many TV shows and podcasts, including the acclaimed Tell Me Everything series on SiriusXM Progress. He's gotten George Harrison to give his final performance on VH1, debated Jerry Falwell and David Duke, and made many appearances on MSNBC, FOX News, and CNN. His epic PBS road trip film on the American Dream, Dream On, directed by Roger Weisberg, was named Best Documentary at the New York Independent Film Festival. Fugelsang lives in New York City with his family.

Michael Riedel has been the theater columnist for the New York Post since 1998. New York magazine has called his column a “must-read” for the theater world. Michael began his radio career as regular on the Imus in the Morning show in 2011. In 2017 WOR, New York’s oldest and highest-rated station, asked him to cohost its morning show with well-known sportscaster Len Berman. The Len Berman and Michael Riedel in the Morning show is the highest-rated morning radio program in the New York City area. Michael’s book Razzle Dazzle: The Battle for Broadway won the Marfield Prize for arts writing in 2015 and is widely considered to be the successor to William Goldman’s celebrated 1967 book about Broadway, The Season. A graduate of Columbia University, Michael lives in the West Village.

GEOGRAPHY OF AWE

Eric Weiner

Travel

Based on the idea of a "thin place"—a place that's not quite heaven but where one can see it from there—The Geography of Awe explores the places and experiences in the world that generate awe, from a mother's kitchen to the Taj Mahal, the Serengeti to Wrigley Field.
