Finding Flora
Elinor Florence

pp. 384

Territory: World English

1-Apr-25 | Adrienne Kerr

Agent: Samantha Haywood, Transatlantic Literary Agency

The instant #1 bestseller set in turn-of-the-century Alberta about a young woman on the run from her abusive husband who uses a legal loophole to claim a homestead in the Wild West—perfect for fans of Outlawed and The Giver of Stars.

Scottish newcomer Flora Craigie jumps from a moving train in 1905 to escape her abusive husband. Desperate to disappear, she claims a homestead on the beautiful but wild Alberta prairie, determined to create a new life for herself. She is astonished to find that her nearest neighbours are also female: a Welsh widow with three children; two American women raising chickens; and a Métis woman who supports herself by training wild horses.

While battling both the brutal environment and the local cynicism toward female farmers, the five women with their very different backgrounds struggle to find common ground. But when their homes are threatened with expropriation by a hostile government, they join forces to “fire the heather,” a Scottish term meaning to raise a ruckus. To complicate matters, there are signs that Flora’s violent husband is still hunting for her. And as the competition for free land along the new Canadian Pacific Railway line heats up, an unscrupulous land agent threatens not only Flora’s livelihood, but her very existence.

ELINOR FLORENCE’S first novel, Bird’s Eye View, was a national bestseller, while the second, Wildwood, was named one of Kobo’s Hundred Most Popular Canadian Books of All Time. Finding Flora was inspired by her own Scottish homesteading and Indigenous ancestors. She is a member of the Métis Nation of British Columbia and makes her home in the mountain resort of Invermere.

See You Around

Lex Paleaux

Territory: World English

19-Jan-27 | Grace O'Connell

Agent: Susanne Rudloff, Ambo Anthos

A heartbreaking, witty, coming-of-age tale perfect for fans of Fredrik Backman in which a shattered Dutch teen arrives in rural 1990s Manitoba for a fresh start, armed only with his yellow Walkman and his beloved American rock cassettes. While there, he'll skin animals, sell Jesus-themed Milo never told his family in the Netherlands what happened in the parking lot or why he stopped going to school. When he asks them to find him a chance to start over, his grandmother secures him a spot with a strict Dutch family in rural Manitoba. Milo packs his Walkman, his Queen and Meat Loaf tapes, dons a discounted purple ski-suit, and travels more than six thousand kilometres.

What he finds in Canada is nothing like what he expected, as he struggles with the brutality of his hosts, the land, the religion he's meant to be reconciling with, and the demons he still can't shake. But Milo has a quick wit, a smart mouth, and a knack for finding the few glimmers of beauty around him. Soon he even has friends—one teenager, one toddler, and one animal.

Love and loss are two sides of the same coin though, and life's tests for Milo are far from through. A coming-of-age tale that sold more than one hundred thousand copies in Lex Paleaux's native Netherlands, See You Around is a raw, honest, heartbreaker of a novel about the power of humour, music, and hope in the darkest of days.

LEX PALEAUX is an acclaimed writer and screenwriter in the Netherlands. His cinematic and moving novels include Winterwater, Als de dood zucht, and See You Around. See You Around was a national Dutch bestseller, was nominated for the NS Audience Award, and won the prestigious Bookstore Prize in 2025.

The High Road
Confessions of a Homicide Cop
 Hank Idsinga

pp. 336

Territory: World All Languages

04-Apr-26 | Adrienne Kerr

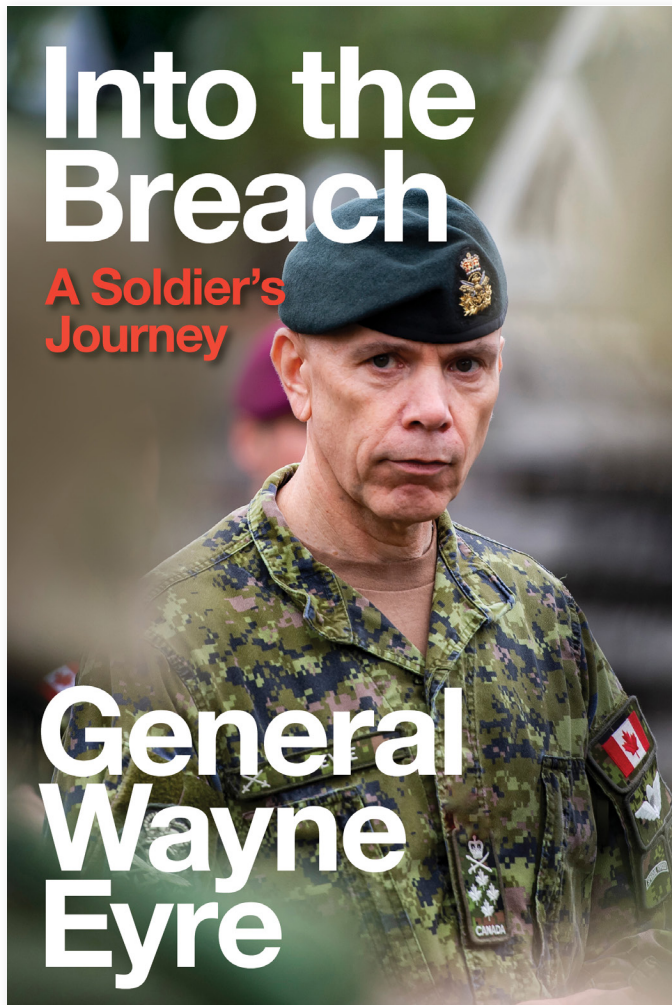

Agent: Carolyn Forde, Transatlantic Literary Agency

HANK IDSINGA was a member of the Toronto Police Services for thirty years, leading the country's top homicide unit for five years. Idsinga has received numerous awards from the Ontario Homicide Investigator's Association, and has twice been recognized by Toronto Life magazine as one of Toronto's 50 Most Influential People. Additionally, he is a regular presenter at policing conferences, including the FBI National Academy Associates Conference and the Ontario Homicide Investigators Conference.

The gripping #1 bestseller recounting true stories and insights from decades of tracking down murderers and serial killers, as told by Canada's leading homicide detective

From the age of ten, Hank Idsinga knew he wanted to become a homicide detective, when he learned that his grandfather had been murdered by the Nazis in the Second World War. He prepared to be a police officer his entire youth and soon found himself in ill-fitting suits training for the job. More than competent—smart, incisive, caring, respectful—Idsinga won over his fellow officers and his superiors. He was as capable of tracking down a getaway man as he was informing a mother that her son, lost to crime, would never return home. Idsinga found himself at the center of some of the most notable crimes in recent Toronto history, from the Jane Creba shooting on Boxing Day to shootouts on Yonge Street to helping track down some of the most vicious serial criminals the city has ever seen.

But it was in homicide that Hank Idsinga would prove such a vital asset to the Toronto Police Services. Idsinga teamed up with his partners, including future chief of police Mark Saunders, on many murder calls—some one-offs, others more nefarious—taking in the scene with his excellent recall, finding the motive and the method faster and more insightfully than most. Idsinga and his team of seasoned detectives participated in taking down some of the worst Toronto has to offer, perhaps none more so than serial killer Bruce McArthur, who had terrorized the gay village for years. Idsinga became the public face for that investigation, and despite the criticism of the police force's handling of the murders, Idsinga always appeared strong and compassionate in front of the media's camera flashes.

Into the Breach
A Soldier's Journey
 General Wayne Eyre

pp. 432

Territory: World All Languages

06-Oct-26 | Kaitlyn Lonnee

Agent: Rick Broadhead, Rick Broadhead Associates

GENERAL EYRE retired in 2024 as Canada's Chief of the Defence Staff. In that role, he led Canada's military through a complex mix of international and domestic crises. D. Eyre is a graduate of the Royal Military College of Canada, holds three master's degrees and an honorary doctorate of military science, and is the recipient of numerous high-level Canadian and foreign decorations. Since retirement, he has been writing, teaching, speaking, and advising.

A riveting memoir about war and peace from Canada's former top soldier, General Wayne Eyre, chronicling his forty-year career in the Canadian Armed Forces and providing insights on our security, our sovereignty, and our place in a rapidly changing world

When soldiers step forward to take on a difficult task, many say they are going "into the breach." Few Canadian senior military leaders have jumped into the breach more often than General Wayne Eyre, who was appointed Chief of the Defence Staff in 2021, serving as both commander of the Canadian Armed Forces and as military advisor to the prime minister and cabinet.

A career soldier, Eyre rose steadily through the ranks and commanded at all levels in our military, from platoon to the Canadian Army, interspersed with many deployments abroad. Into the Breach recounts his decades-long journey through conflict and crisis with captivating honesty and revealing detail, including his time leading peacekeeping missions in Cyprus, Croatia, and Bosnia; overseeing Canada's evacuation operation after the fall of Afghanistan; supporting Ukraine in its fight against Russian aggression; and confronting Chinese intimidation in the Pacific and suspected spy balloons over North America.

Eyre also describes battling floods and wildfires across Canada, supporting the country during the worst of the COVID-19 pandemic, and fighting in the halls of power for the resources to defend our nation as threats increased daily—including to our Arctic sovereignty.

Both an enthralling personal account of a distinguished career spent in service and a tribute to the rich history of our military and its members, Into the Breach concludes by addressing the precarious place in which Canada now finds itself from a defence and national security perspective. In this new era of increased global disorder and unrelenting operational demands for the Canadian Armed Forces, Eyre's thoughts are imperative for all Canadians to contemplate as they consider whether they, too, are ready to jump into the breach.

From #1 bestselling authors Peter Mansbridge and Mark Bulgutch comes a collection of Canadian stories inviting us to celebrate the impact and influence of teachers and the students whose lives they have changed forever..

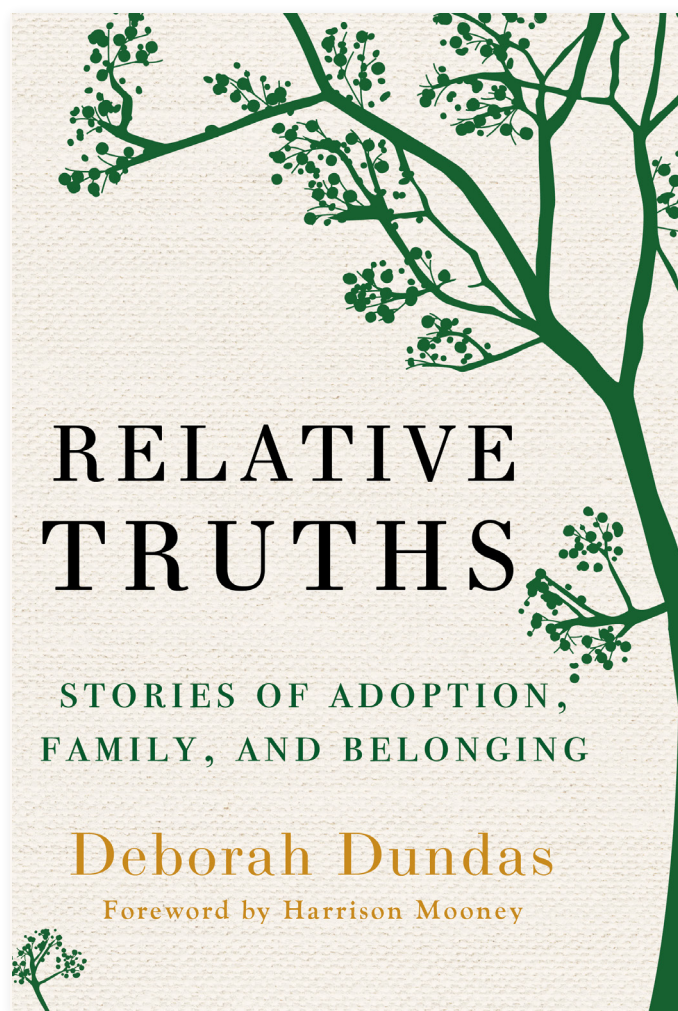

Few people make more of an impact on young people's lives than teachers. Parents, of course, are vital for a child's future, but it is our teachers who choose to devote their daily lives to illuminating the world around them, selflessly spending their careers changing the trajectories of the young people in their charge. Teaching can be a thankless job, but these homeroom heroes dedicate themselves not only to following the curriculum but to protecting their students, recognizing their struggles, and intervening when necessary, helping to shape them into productive members of society and the leaders of our future. From elementary and secondary schools, to post-secondary and even in hospital and prison settings, these stories will inform, entertain, and grab you by the heart.

Through dozens of profiles of teachers, and some students, Canada's most authoritative news voice, Peter Mansbridge, along with veteran journalist Mark Bulgutch, recount true stories of teachers on the front lines of this vital profession as they contend with students' challenges with their course material, mental health, language skills, sexuality, and many other matters.

A Noble Profession celebrates the experiences of teachers and students, making an ideal gift for any teacher in your life and any students and parents who want to understand the challenges and witness the triumphs in the classrooms that dot the country.

PETER MANSBRIDGE is the former chief correspondent for CBC News; anchor of The National, CBC's flagship nightly newscast where he worked for thirty years. He is the author of the instant #1 national bestsellers Off the Record and Extraordinary Canadians.

MARK BULGUTCH is a journalist, educator, speaker, and the author of the instant #1 national bestseller Extraordinary Canadians and three other books.

Relative Truths

Stories of Adoption, Family, and Belonging
Deborah Dundas

pp. 320

02-Feb-27 | Grace O'Connell

Agent: Martha Webb, CookeMcDermid Literary

DEBORAH DUNDAS is an award-winning writer and editor in Toronto. She is an opinion editor at The Toronto Star, and the winner of both a National Newspaper Project of the Year Award and a Special Citation from the Canadian Journalism Foundation. She has covered business and politics in Canada and Northern Ireland in print and on television, and interviewed some of the world's most recognizable writers, including Salman Rushdie, Margaret Atwood, Colson Whitehead, Jonathan Franzen, Zadie Smith, and John Irving.

From one of Canada's most celebrated journalists comes an intimate collection of interviews that illuminate the joys, pains, traumas, and triumphs of adoption—featuring conversations with John Irving, Jenny Heijun Wills, Marilyn Churley, and more.

Adoption tales dominate our shared stories and culture—from Anne of Green Gables to Moses in his basket—but until recently, the complexities of many adoptees' experiences were rarely given voice. As laws and attitudes change around adoptees' rights, from contact with birth families to connection with birth cultures, we have a chance to tell truer and more inclusive stories.

Deborah Dundas is one of Canada's most respected journalists, covering arts, culture, and news in the pages of The Toronto Star for nearly two decades. When she discovered a long-buried adoption story in her own family, Dundas set out to find Canadians with diverse experiences of adoption and give them a platform to share their perspectives, from the heartwarming to the heartbreaking.

For some families, adoption is the root of their love and togetherness. For others, it comes with lifelong questions, and sometimes, significant pain. In these interviews, which include discussions with writer John Irving, author and academic Jenny Heijun Wills, and former Cabinet Minister Marilyn Churley, Dundas shines a light on our evolving understanding of how families come in many forms and how adoption is not the end of a story but rather, a beginning that encompasses as many possible outcomes as any family tale.

Every Field a Battlefield

Janice Dickson

pp. 288

23-Feb-27 | Brittany Lavery

Agent: Rick Broadhead, Rick Broadhead Associates

JANICE DICKSON covers international affairs for The Globe and Mail. She began covering Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in 2022 and has made more than a half a dozen reporting trips to the country, covering Russia's illegal annexation of Ukrainian territory, Russian filtration camps in occupied regions of Ukraine, Russian missile attacks, and a range of deeply reported stories focusing on civilians.

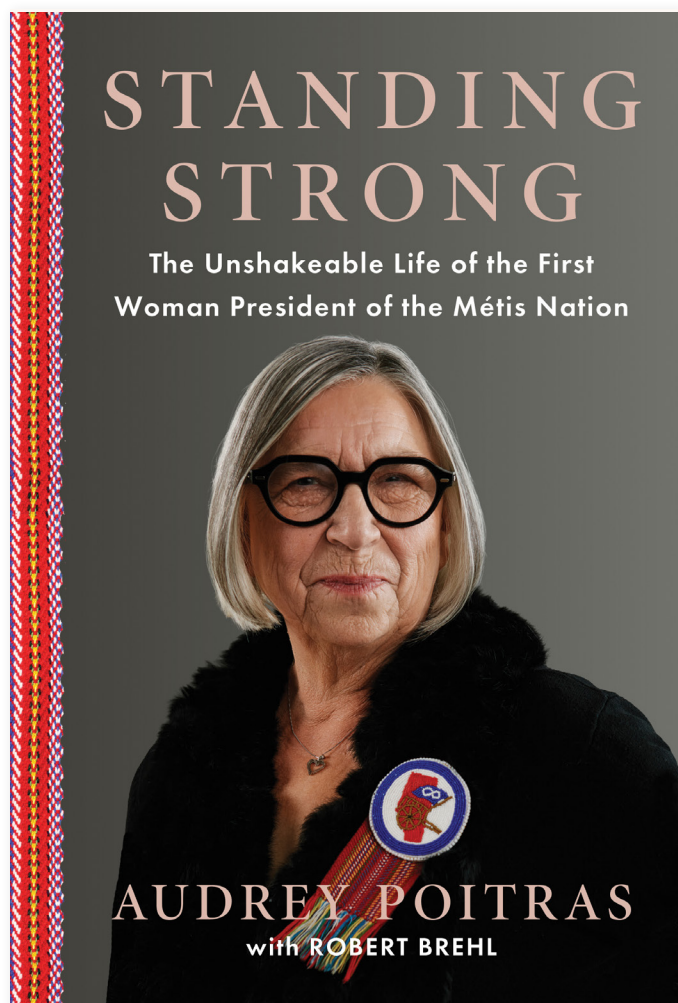

Award-winning Globe and Mail journalist Janice Dickson provides a vital new lens on the ongoing war in Ukraine through the gripping firsthand accounts of women—soldiers, teachers, mothers, and many more—across the country.

On February 24, 2022, hell arrived on Ukraine's doorstep: Russia had launched a full-scale invasion of the country, sending missiles crashing into homes and armed soldiers pouring across the border to take up illegal occupation. But as the world watched in horror, Ukrainians remained defiant—and the spirit of that defiance is wholly embodied by the women of Ukraine.

Over the course of more than half a dozen reporting trips to Ukraine, Globe and Mail journalist Janice Dickson met those who joined the military and took up combat positions, civilians who worked to disrupt Russian advances while living under occupation, and those who continued to fight for freedom in all kinds of ways, despite enduring heartbreaking loss.

Dickson travelled extensively throughout the country and spoke with dozens of women, meeting combat medics near the front line in Kharkiv, teachers in an underground school in Zaporizhzhia, and a woman demining a village outside of Kyiv. She met others in their homes, cafes, or the apartment she rented in Kyiv. Many spoke for hours, recounting harrowing frontline battle scenes or the measures they took to protect their families during the early days of the full-scale invasion.

These are the stories of women risking their own lives to save their children, their families, their neighbours, and even perfect strangers. These are the stories of female soldiers, but also of ordinary people who exhibited extraordinary courage and resilience. These are mothers, daughters, sisters, and grandmothers. Their remarkable stories span more than three years of war and come together to form a gripping account of bravery and humanity.

The Unshakeable Life of the First Woman President of the Métis Nation

The trailblazing story of the “accidental politician” Audrey Poitras, the first woman President of the Métis Nation of Alberta and later, Métis National Council

For generations, the Métis—once labelled the “Forgotten People” and pushed to the margins as the “Road Allowance People”—have fought tirelessly for recognition, rights, and justice. In this deeply personal and politically urgent book, Métis leader Audrey Poitras brings that struggle into the present, tracing hard-won legal victories, ongoing challenges, and the resilience of a nation determined to be seen and heard.

At the heart of Standing Strong is Poitras’s own extraordinary journey—from entrepreneur to accidental politician to one of the most influential Métis leaders in Canada. With clarity and conviction, she shows that meaningful change doesn’t come from the outside, it must be driven from within communities themselves.

Both a continuation of the story begun in The North-West Is Our Mother by Jean Teillet, and a bold step forward into the 21st century, Standing Strong is essential reading for anyone seeking to understand the past, present, and future of Métis rights and reconciliation in Canada.

AUDREY POITRAS is one of the most influential and accomplished Métis leaders in Canada. She led the Métis Nation of Alberta for twenty-seven years, from 1996 to 2023, becoming the longest-serving leader in the organization’s history. Among her many landmark achievements, she negotiated the first-ever self-government agreement between the Government of Canada and a Métis government, and advanced major initiatives to give Métis more control over their education and welfare.

Chasing Wonder

4-May-27 | Amanda Betts

Agent: Connor Smith, Hesperides Literary Agency

LESLEY CARTER is a writer, adventurer, mother, and founder of the travel and lifestyle brand Bucket List Publications. Her work has appeared countless times in major media and through partnerships with international brands like Disney, GoPro, Lego, National Geographic, and Redbull. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in English, a Bachelor of Education in Secondary Education, and a Master's in Literacy Education. Additionally, she holds a captain's license, a private pilot license, a motorcycle license, and PADI certification.

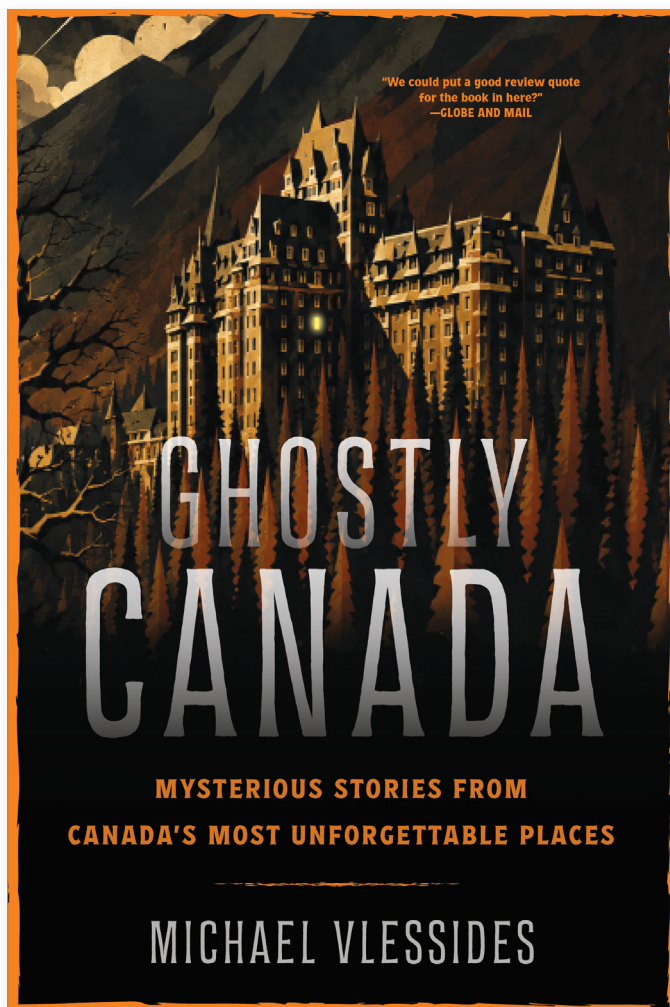

One mom, two kids, one hundred countries: From one of Canada's most followed travel storytellers, a gloriously imperfect story of family life on the road.

Born and raised on Cape Breton Island, Lesley Carter grew up in the embrace of a big, loving family with a tight-knit sense of home. However from a young age, she couldn't help wondering what lay beyond the island. Enraptured by stories from international visitors to her grandparents' B&B, and finding escape in novels, she eventually set her sights on becoming a teacher. It seemed like the perfect way to keep one foot on the ground while funding a life of adventure. Like so many of the unforgettable tales shared in Chasing Wonder, things did not go quite according to plan.

Taking us from Nova Scotia to California, Fiji, Uganda, Antarctica and beyond, Lesley tells the story of going from teacher to travel blogger and building a successful business out of thrill seeking while tackling the biggest journey of all: becoming a parent. The adrenaline rush of new experiences now had to be balanced with caution and routine. The solution? Take her daughter, Athena, and son, Max, along with her to 100 countries across five continents--and create home for them on the road.

This is not a guidebook on how to sell your belongings and move your family into a suitcase. Chasing Wonder is an account of the detours, belly laughs, spectacular mishaps, and awe-inspiring moments that became family legend. It's about the resilience and gratitude that travel can foster in children who are still occasionally feral enough to lick a museum railing while their mother yells, "Please don't!". And it's about finding wonder at home when a transatlantic flight isn't in the cards.

Full of warmth, hilarity and hard-won wisdom, Chasing Wonder is an irresistible invitation to remain curious, embrace the unexpected, and recognize that adventure—both small and grand—belongs to us all.

Ghostly Canada

Mysterious Stories From Canada's Most Unforgettable Places

MICHAEL VLESSIDES is the bestselling author and coauthor of fifteen books, including The Ice Pilots, Survive (with Les Stroud), North of Ordinary (with Sue Aikens) and Surf When You Can (with Captain Brett Crozier). A graduate of NYU, Mike started his career writing for Major League Baseball and his work has appeared in leading magazines including Canadian Geographic and International Wildlife. Mike lives in Victoria, British Columbia and Canmore, Alberta.

The perfect companion for road trippers and armchair explorers, Ghostly Canada is a fresh and unexpected way to explore (and experience) Canada's national parks revealing the fascinating and often mysterious histories lurking in these unforgettable places.

Canada's national parks and historic sites are known for their breathtaking landscapes and rich history—but many are also home to spirits and tales that refuse to fade away.

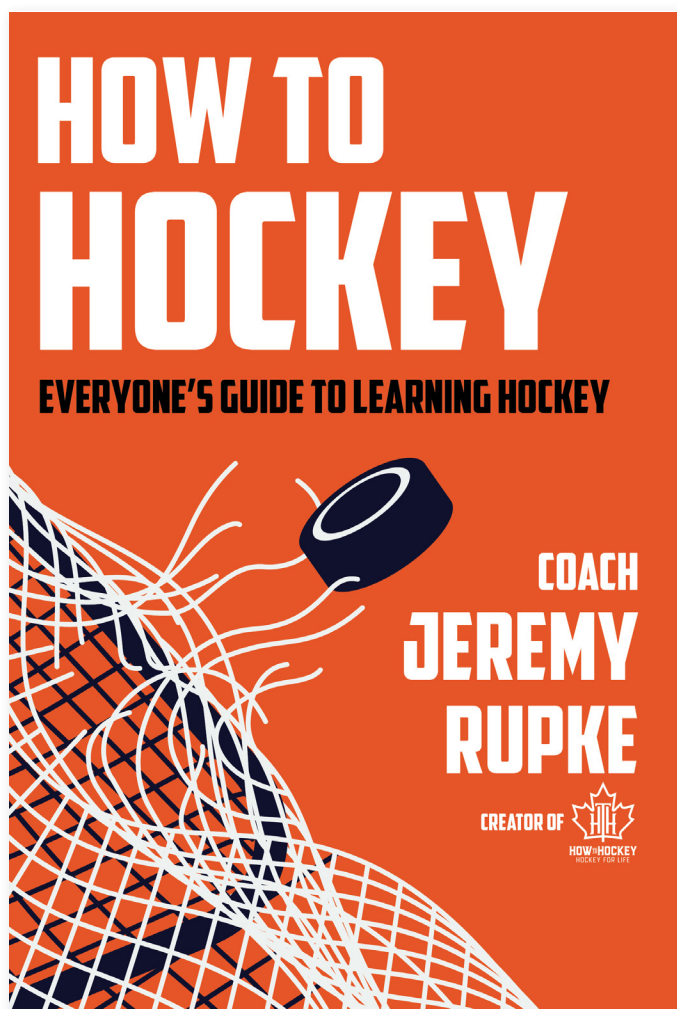

From haunted hotels and phantom ships to unexplained disappearances, battlefield apparitions, and encounters that defy explanation, Ghostly Canada takes you deep into the strange and enduring mysteries that haunt Canada's most iconic places. Heads removed from bodies in the far north. The restless ghosts of fallen soldiers from battles hundreds of years ago. Ballads sung by witches burned at the stake. Ghost ships drifting through fog-bound seas.

Drawing on eyewitness accounts, and historical records, Ghostly Canada features 35 stories including:

- the ghostly residents of the Banff Springs Hotel
- the spirits of the mysterious 'Long Dog' and Captain Kidd in Fundy National Park
- the mystery of the Valley of the Headless Men in Nahanni National Park Reserve
- unexplained activity at L'Anse aux Meadows National Historic Site
- the "Erie Triangle" and other strange phenomena at Point Pelee National Park
- chilling encounters from the High Arctic in Quttinipaaq National Park and many more.

Perfect for fans of ghost stories, Canadian history, folklore, and dark tourism, Ghostly Canada offers a haunting journey from coast to coast to coast through the places where Canada's past and its mysteries still linger.

How to Hockey
Everyone's Guide to Learning Hockey
 Jeremy Rupke

pp. 320

 12-Oct-27 | Brad Wilson
 Agent: N/A

JEREMY RUPKE is the creator of How to Hockey, available on HowtoHockey.com and on YouTube and other sites. Rupke and his team are constantly creating new content to entertain, educate, and motivate hockey players so that anyone, anywhere can enjoy the best game in the world. Rupke's YouTube channels has 1.34M followers, with many more across other social media channels. He lives outside of Barrie, Ontario.

Jeremy Rupke, creator of the How to Hockey phenomenon, shoots and scores with this dynamic, informative, and, most of all, fun guide to playing hockey for people of all ages.

Packed with practical information about improving your team, with lists, step-by-step info, and proven strategies, How to Hockey is everyone's ultimate guide to improving their game, from the net to defence to forwards. Along the way you learn that practice isn't supposed to be pretty, repetition is your friend, and, more than anything, fun is the key.

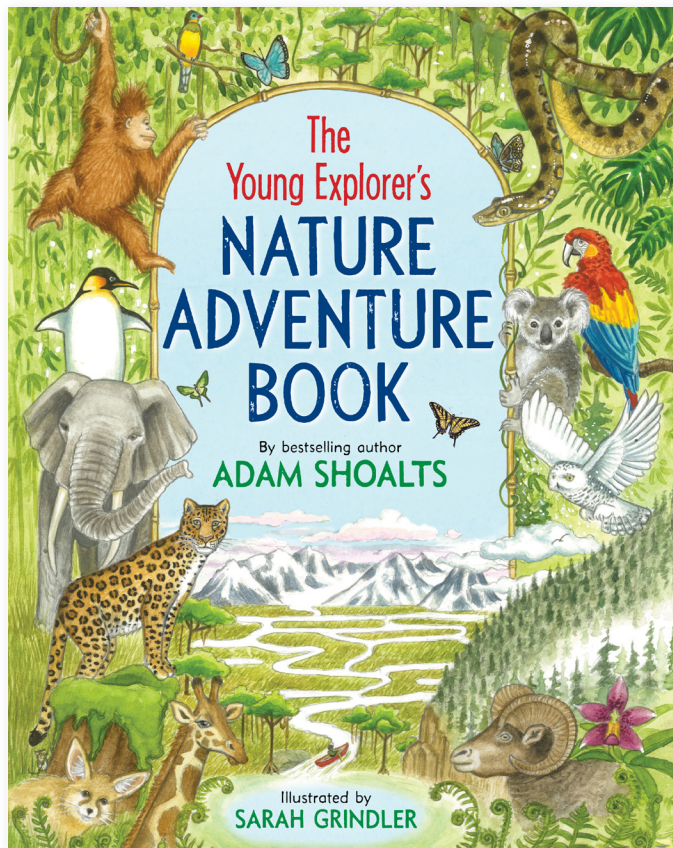

Jeremy Rupke has broken the mold, proving that those who can, teach. The creator of the wildly popular How to Hockey website, YouTube channels, and across social media has turned his hockey skillset and coaching mentality into a virtual empire, instructing people young and old from around the world on how to improve their games and, most importantly, how to make the experience fun.

Rupke grew up in a small town where hockey was everything but where the coaching experiences were mixed: some great, well-meaning people doing their best. He learned a lot about the game and found himself teaching himself a lot of aspects of the sport along the way, whether practicing his shot in his family's barn or skating on the pond, carving the ice, teaching himself new moves.

Coach Jeremy, as he's known, shows his fans everything he knows all in one place: how to shoot the puck effectively, use everyday items for slalom skating and target practice, defend oncoming wingers, crush your slapshot, take a hit, score like Bedard, celly like Matthews, and most of all, how to hockey. Without doubt, How to Hockey provides vital instruction and inspiration and will instill (or re-instill) a lasting love of the greatest game on ice.
