Cuba: An American History tells the story of how Europe's longest-lived colony became so intricately tied to the United States. How a place that on several occasions almost became a US state and that for a long time served as a favorite haunt of American mobsters and missionaries, honeymooners, and businessmen reinvented itself as a Soviet ally, brought the world to the brink of nuclear destruction, outlived the Soviet Union, and now once again beckons American travelers and investors. Ferrer is one of the world's leading historians of Cuba, whose deep knowledge comes at once from sustained scholarly study over more than 25 years, extensive travel to the island over almost as long, and rich personal experience. Ferrer is Professor of History and Latin American and Caribbean Studies at New York University, where she has taught since 1995. She is the author of Insurgent Cuba: Race, Nation, and Revolution, 1868–1898 (UNC Press, 1999), which won the 2000 Berkshire Book Prize for the best first book by a woman in any field of history, and Freedom's Mirror: Cuba and Haiti in the Age of Revolution (Cambridge University Press, 2014), which won a record number of prizes from the American Historical Association: the Friedrich Katz Prize for the best book in Latin American and Caribbean history, the James Rawley Prize for the best book in the history of the Atlantic World, and the Wesley-Logan Prize for the best book in the history of the African Diaspora, as well as the prestigious Frederick Douglass Prize awarded jointly by the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition at Yale University and the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History.

Hardcover * September 2021

Nonfiction

People have always been fascinated by the sea. The epic histories of the imperial age established naval dominance as the currency of power, but oceans receded from our consciousness as land battles, air power, and missile systems dominated our worries about security during the nuclear age. All that has changed, as 90% of all global commerce is linked to sea-based trade and again, the struggle for power on the seas is taking center stage. Jones takes the reader on a voyage through the great modern ports and naval bases of our time—from the vast container ports of Shanghai and Hong Kong to the massive naval base of the American 5th fleet in Bahrain. Along the way, the book will illustrate how modern trade works, and why the oceans are so crucial to our modern global economy. Jones is vice president and director of the Foreign Policy program at Brookings and a senior fellow in the Institution's Project on International Order and Strategy. He is also a consulting professor at the Freeman Spogli Institute at Stanford University. He served in the United Nations' operation in Kosovo, and was special assistant to the U.N. special coordinator for the Middle East peace process.

CHIP WAR: How the World's Most Critical Technology Reset the Balance of Power, Accelerated Globalization, and Will Determine Who Controls the Future
Hardcover * October 2022

RH
Nonfiction

Power in the modern world—military, economic, geopolitical—is built on a foundation of computer chips. America has maintained its lead as a superpower only because it has dominated advances in computer chips and all the technology that chips have enabled. (Virtually everything runs on chips: cars, i-phones, the stock market, even the electric grid.) Now America's edge is in danger of slipping, undermined by the naïve assumption that globalizing the chip industry and letting players in Taiwan, Korea, and Europe take over manufacturing serves America's interests. Currently, as Chip War reveals, China, which spends as much on chips as it sells of any other product, is pouring billions into a chip-building Manhattan Project to catch up to the U.S. At stake is America's military superiority and economic prosperity. In Chip War, historian Chris Miller recounts the fascinating sequence of events that led from the United States' perfecting the chip design, to promoting their use in everything from artificial intelligence to armed drones, and then, slowly but surely, letting key components of the chip-building process out of its grasp. Chip War argues that we can't make sense of politics, economics, or technology today without first understanding the central role played by chips in shaping the modern world. Chris Miller, a faculty member at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Director at geopolitical consultancy Greenmantle, and contributor to The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal, offers an epic account of the past, present, and future of the computer chip, in the tradition of Daniel Yergin's The Prize (sold in 21 international markets) with its warning about future jostling for resource supremacy.

CRISIS HUNTERS: How Wall Street Traders Are Making Billions in the New Age of Chaos

Hardcover * June 2022

RH

Nonfiction

The world has gotten more extreme. Pandemics, climate disasters, superpower rivalries, technological disruption, political radicalization, cyber-terrorism—all threaten chaos that will put trillions in assets at risk. But around the world, across a wide variety of disciplines, would-be super-forecasters are trying to take the guesswork out of what formerly seemed like random chance. Others embrace “black swans”—an unpredictable event beyond what is normally expected and that carries dire consequences—believing that if these events can’t be foreseen, they can at least be prepared for. And some of these chaos trackers, such as the hedge fund Universa, are getting rich off of tumult. In researching The Crisis Hunters, Scott Patterson not only obtained exclusive access to top strategists at Universa but he also combed Wall Street to find market players with similar models. In addition, he ranged from far outside finance to meet with seers in a variety of fields, from earthquake prediction to counter-terrorism to climatology to see if it’s actually possible to beat disaster—and win. Patterson has been a reporter for nearly two decades, mostly at The Wall Street Journal in New York, Washington D.C., and London. He is the New York Times bestselling author of The Quants in 2010 and wrote Dark Pools in 2012.

SIT UP STRAIGHT: Future-Proof Your Body Against Chronic Pain with 12 Simple Movements

Hardcover * April 2022

RH

Nonfiction

What if we could easily acquire long-lasting protection for our bodies and escape the chronic pain caused by our sit-all-the-time, slouch-too-much lifestyles? Vinh Pham is a world-class physical therapist who has worked with a broad range of clients, from Olympians to NBA stars to MMA fighters to Golden Globe and Grammy Award-winning artists. Pham discovered early on in his career that most of his patients came to him already in pain. Poor, deeply ingrained lifestyle habits misaligned their joints and tightened their muscles. If you’re sitting for more than thirty minutes at a time without getting up, you may be heading toward a world of hurt. Vinh’s answer to the host of muscle maladies that ails us has been a revolutionary concept: why not future proof? Instead of reacting to chronic pain after it flares up, what if we focused on a “movement discipline” that not only prevented injuries but leads to longer lives, healthier bodies, and clearer minds? Sit Up Straight outlines a process that starts with a daily posture hygiene regimen. Vinh provides daily exercises that can lock in protection as well as a series of customized movements based on age, gender, and the kind of work we perform. A precise and simple toolkit for tweaking the way we move (or refuse to move), Sit Up Straight shows that the solution to becoming pain-free is easier than we think. Pham is a licensed physical therapist with over a decade’s experience working with industry-leading health and wellness brands and treating top athletes, celebrities, and entrepreneurs. He is the founder of Myodetox, a group of design-forward manual therapy clinics that are reimagining traditional therapy and rehab experience.

IN WHOSE RUINS
Hardcover * April 2022

SH
Nonfiction

In this examination of landscape and memory, four sites of American history are revealed as places where historical truth was written over by oppressive fiction—with profound repercussions for politics past and present. From ancient Indigenous monuments that settlers declared to be the work of a mythical white race; to the faith-infused quest for oil in Pennsylvania; to the removal of Native artworks threatened by a hydroelectric dam on Maryland's Susquehanna River; to the toxic legacy of the nuclear program in the American west, In Whose Ruins ranges over the American landscape. These geographical sites are all sources of power, literal and metaphorical. They are also united by a pattern of erasure: in each case, colonizers who drove out Indigenous peoples and then denied their claim to the land invented new histories to give legitimacy to their actions. Here, the sciences of memory—archaeology, anthropology, history, and linguistics, are shown to be haunted by their complicity in silencing the communities they studied. Engrossing and clear-eyed, this examination of the American tradition of selective remembrance and forgetting shows how the past itself became an exploitable resource—and offers an invaluable torch in the search for a way forward. Author Alicia Puglionesi is a writer and historian with a PhD in the history of science, medicine, and technology.

COLD, COLD BONES: A Temperance Brennan Novel
Hardcover * June 2022

RH
Fiction

Winter has come to North Carolina and, with it, a drop in crime. For a while, temporarily idle forensic anthropologist Tempe Brennan is content to dote on her daughter Katy, finally returned to civilian life from the army. But when mother and daughter return to Tempe's place one night for dinner, they find a box on the back porch. Inside: a very fresh human eyeball. GPS coordinates etched into the eyeball lead to a Benedictine Monastery where an equally macabre discover awaits. Soon after, Tempe examines a mummified corpse in a state park, and her anxiety deepens. There seems to be no pattern to these killings, except that each mimics in some way a killing that a younger Tempe witnessed, analyzed, or barely escaped. Who is targeting her, and why? In a sudden twist of events, Tempe's daughter Katy disappears. At its core, Cold, Cold Bones is about revenge, and the lasting damage caused by violence, trauma and loss. Kathy Reichs' first novel Deja Dead was a #1 New York Times bestseller and won the 1997 Ellis Award for Best First Novel. Cold, Cold Bones is Kathy's twenty first entry in her series featuring forensic anthropologist Temperance Brennan. Kathy was also a producer of the hit Fox TV series, Bones, which is based on her work and her novels. Dr. Reichs is one of very few forensic anthropologists certified by the American Board of Forensic Anthropology. She served on the Board of Directors and as Vice President of both the American Academy of Forensic Sciences and the American Board of Forensic Anthropology, and as a member of the National Police Services Advisory Council in Canada.

A storm has hit South Carolina, dredging up crimes of the past. En route to Isle of Palms, a barrier island off the South Carolina coast, forensic anthropologist Temperance Brennan receives a call from the Charleston coroner. During the storm, a medical waste container has washed up on the beach. Inside are two decomposed bodies wrapped in plastic sheeting and bound with electrical wire. Chillingly, Tempe recognizes many details as identical to those of an unsolved case she handled in Quebec fifteen earlier. With a growing sense of foreboding, she flies to Montreal to gather evidence and convince her boss Pierre LaManch to reopen the cold case. She also seeks the advice and comfort of her longtime beau Andrew Ryan. Meanwhile, a storm of a different type gathers force in South Carolina. The citizens of Charleston are struck by capnocytophaga, a bacterium that, at its worst, can eat human flesh. Shockingly, Tempe eventually deduces not only that the victims in both grisly murder cases are related, but that the murders and the disease outbreak also have a common cause.

CH
Nonfiction

Once it was one of the most famous events in early American history. Today, no one remembers. In an obscure, two-hundred-year-old museum in a little village in western Massachusetts, there reposes what was once the most celebrated but now totally forgotten relic from the history of early New England—the massive, tomahawk-scarred door that came to symbolize the notorious Deerfield Massacre. This impregnable barrier—venerated by early Americans as “The Old Indian Door”—is the sole surviving relic from the most dramatic moment in colonial American history. On February 29, 1704, hundreds of Native Americans and their French allies swept down upon an isolated but key frontier post and wiped it out. That was only the beginning. Nearly one-hundred survivors were captured and led on a 900-mile forced march north into enemy territory in Canada before they were ransomed back. The sacking of Deerfield led to one of the greatest sagas of adventure, survival, sacrifice, family, honor, and faith ever told on this continent. James Swanson is the author of New York Times bestseller Manhunt: The 12-Day Chase for Lincoln’s Killer.

THE STAR BUILDERS: Nuclear Fusion and the Race to Power the Planet RH

Hardcover * August 2021

Nonfiction

All across the world teams of scientists are being assembled at great expense by governments, research universities, and venture capital firms to solve what is the most difficult technological challenge mankind has ever faced: building the equivalent of a star on earth. If the researchers are successful in creating a process of controlled fusion in which atoms of hydrogen are heated to temperatures as high as 100 million degrees, ionized into a plasma, then, for several instants, held together, a stream of energy will be created that is so powerful it can potentially be a source of inexhaustible energy. Not only could controlled fusion eliminate the need for fossil fuels and immediately solve the climate crisis, it could help realize other long-dreamed-of aims like journeying to the stars. With the environmental stakes steadily rising in the last forty years, and laser and magnetic field technology ramping up, there is high confidence that the fusion puzzle will soon be solved. In The Star Builders, Arthur Turrell, an award-winning young plasma physicist who possesses a unique ability to render complicated science understandable, offers a quick history of fusion then introduces us to the leading fusion teams as they race to cross the finish line. Subsidizing these modern-day Manhattan projects are firms like Goldman Sachs and Google, universities like Oxford and MIT, international consortiums, and big dreaming entrepreneurs like Jeff Bezos and Peter Thiel. It's a race that, when it's completed, will make all of us winners. Arthur Turrell has a PhD in plasma physics from Imperial College London and is the recipient of the Rutherford Prize for the Public Understanding of Plasma Physics. His research and writing have been featured in The Daily Mail, The Guardian, the International Business Times, Gizmodo and other general audience publications. He also works as a Senior Economist for the Bank of England where he is applying his scientific training to questions about the macro-economy.
