Ferrer, Ada
CUBA: An American History
Hardcover * September 2021

CH
Nonfiction

Cuba: An American History tells the story of how Europe's longest-lived colony became so intricately tied to the United States. How a place that on several occasions almost became a US state and that for a long time served as a favorite haunt of American mobsters and missionaries, honeymooners, and businessmen reinvented itself as a Soviet ally, brought the world to the brink of nuclear destruction, outlived the Soviet Union, and now once again beckons American travelers and investors. Ferrer is one of the world's leading historians of Cuba, whose deep knowledge comes at once from sustained scholarly study over more than 25 years, extensive travel to the island over almost as long, and rich personal experience. Ferrer is Professor of History and Latin American and Caribbean Studies at New York University, where she has taught since 1995. She is the author of Insurgent Cuba: Race, Nation, and Revolution, 1868–1898 (UNC Press, 1999), which won the 2000 Berkshire Book Prize for the best first book by a woman in any field of history, and Freedom's Mirror: Cuba and Haiti in the Age of Revolution (Cambridge University Press, 2014), which won a record number of prizes from the American Historical Association: the Friedrich Katz Prize for the best book in Latin American and Caribbean history, the James Rawley Prize for the best book in the history of the Atlantic World, and the Wesley-Logan Prize for the best book in the history of the African Diaspora, as well as the prestigious Frederick Douglass Prize awarded jointly by the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition at Yale University and the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History.

Grover, Tim S. and Shari Wenk
WINNING: The Unforgiving Race to Greatness
Hardcover * May 2021

RH
Nonfiction

From the elite performance coach for Michael Jordan, Kobe Bryant, Dwyane Wade, and many others—and the author of the powerful bestseller Relentless—a no-holds-barred formula for winning that is ideal for business people, athletes, and anybody wanting to achieve success. In Relentless, Tim Grover showed that you need to be tough and ruthless—toward others and yourself—to achieve your goals. Now, in Winning he takes that skill repertoire to an even higher level, demonstrating why he is one of the world's most sought-after mindset experts. Based on three decades of work with elite competitors like Michael Jordan, Kobe Bryant, and Dwyane Wade, Winning challenges you to destroy every obstacle in your path, even if, at the moment of greatest triumph, it may be all taken away. Whether you're an athlete striving to win, an entrepreneur building a business, a CEO managing an empire, a salesperson looking to close a deal, or a high achiever determined to stand in the winner's circle, Winning offers thirteen key principles for ramping up your performance to the maximum. If you're addicted to the taste of success and crave more, then you're ready for the results-driven performance formula found here. And if you're already winning and want to learn how to execute excellence repeatedly—so you can own not just this moment, but the next, and the next—then Winning is for you. Tim S. Grover is the CEO of Attack Athletics, Inc., founded in 1989. World-renowned for his work with hundreds of sports and business professionals, he is the preeminent authority on the science and art of physical and mental dominance. He is the author of the national bestseller Relentless: From Good to Great to Unstoppable and creator of the digital training platform The Relentless System. Tim speaks around the world to a wide variety of audiences and appears on numerous media outlets.

RELENTLESS: From Good to Great to Unstoppable
Hardcover * April 2013

RH
Nonfiction

Legendary trainer Tim Grover uses his experience with the world's top athletes to drill down into the killer instinct that separates the good from the great, showing you how to tap into the dark side of competitive intensity in order to win—regardless of the circumstance or cost. For more than two decades, legendary trainer Tim Grover has taken the greats—Michael Jordan, Kobe Bryant, Dwyane Wade, and hundreds of relentless competitors in sports, business, and every walk of life—and made them greater. Now, for the first time ever, he reveals what it takes to achieve total mental and physical dominance, showing you how to be relentless and achieve whatever you desire. Direct, blunt, and brutally honest, Grover breaks down what it takes to be unstoppable: you keep going when everyone else is giving up, you thrive under pressure, you never let your emotions make you weak. In “The Relentless 13,” he details the essential traits shared by the most intense competitors and achievers in sports, business, and all walks of life.

TO RULE THE WAVES: How Control of the World's Oceans Determines the Fate of the Superpowers

Hardcover * September 2021

CH
Nonfiction

From a brilliant Brookings Institute writer, a vivid and provocatively reported explanation of the critical role oceans now play in the gigantic struggle for global power, in the vein of Robert Kaplan's best-selling The Revenge of Geography. People have always been fascinated by the sea. The epic histories of the imperial age established naval dominance as the currency of power, but oceans receded from our consciousness as land battles, air power, and missile systems dominated our worries about security during the nuclear age. All that has changed, as 90% of all global commerce is linked to sea-based trade and again, the struggle for power on the seas is taking center stage. Jones takes the reader on a voyage through the great modern ports and naval bases of our time—from the vast container ports of Shanghai and Hong Kong to the massive naval base of the American 5th fleet in Bahrain, via the naval operations against piracy off the coast of East Africa and the sophisticated security arrangements in the port of New York. Along the way, the book will illustrate how modern trade works, and why the oceans are so crucial to our modern global economy. Jones is vice president and director of the Foreign Policy program at Brookings and a senior fellow in the Institution's Project on International Order and Strategy. He is also a consulting professor at the Freeman Spogli Institute at Stanford University. He served in the United Nations' operation in Kosovo, and was special assistant to the U.N. special coordinator for the Middle East peace process.

THE PLAGUE CYCLE: The Unending War Between Humanity and Infectious Diseases RH

Hardcover * January 2021

Nonfiction

A vivid, sweeping history of mankind's battles with infectious disease, for readers of the #1 New York Times bestsellers Yuval Harari's Sapiens and John Barry's The Great Influenza. For four thousand years, the size and vitality of cities, economies, and empires were heavily determined by infection. Striking humanity in waves, the cycle of plagues set the tempo of civilizational growth and decline, since common response to the threat was exclusion—quarantining the sick or keeping them out. But the unprecedented hygiene and medical revolutions of the past two centuries have allowed humanity to free itself from the hold of epidemic cycles—resulting in an urbanized, globalized, and unimaginably wealthy world. However, our development has lately become precarious. Climate and population fluctuations and aspects of our prosperity such as global trade have left us more vulnerable than ever to newly emerging plagues. Greater global cooperation toward sustainable health is urgently required—such as the international efforts to harvest a Covid-19 vaccine—with millions of lives and trillions of dollars at stake. Written as colorful history, The Plague Cycle reveals the relationship between civilization, globalization, prosperity, and infectious disease over the past five millennia. It harnesses history, economics, and public health, and charts humanity's remarkable progress, providing a fascinating and timely look at the cyclical nature of infectious disease. Charles Kenny is a writer-researcher at the Center for Global Development, and has worked on policy reforms in global health as well as UN peacekeeping and combating international financial corruption. Previously, he spent fifteen years as an economist at the World Bank, travelling the planet from Baghdad and Kabul to Brasilia and Beijing. He is the author of Getting Better: Why Global Development is Succeeding and How We Can Improve the World Even More and The Upside of Down: Why the Rise of the Rest Is Great for the West.

Nonfiction

Learn how you can boost your immune system and help prevent virtually every major medical condition—including cancer, heart disease, neurological disorders, GI issues, and obesity—by keeping your lymph system healthy, as explained by renowned cardiologist Gerald Lemole. The lymphatic system serves as our body’s maintenance department and has a direct effect on our cardiovascular, neurological, and immune systems. It has also been one of the most misunderstood systems. Until now. At last, renowned cardiothoracic surgeon and pioneer in the study of lymph Gerald Lemole explains in straightforward language why the lymphatic system is the key factor in longevity and disease prevention, and how improving lymphatic flow can help our bodies eliminate the toxins and waste products that contribute to injury, inflammation, and disease. In ten short chapters he demystifies the lymphatic system, describes how powerful it is, and shows how to maintain a healthy lymph system to combat specific diseases and health problems—from heart disease to cognitive function to weight management. Featuring sidebars with charts and graphs that illustrate basic principles, Lymph & Longevity also includes flow-friendly menus, recipes, and information on supplements, as well as basic yoga and meditation guides. Illuminating, informative, and practical this essential guide is more timely now than ever as we continue to work to protect ourselves and our communities against Covid-19 and other viruses.

Letersky, Paul
THE DIRECTOR: My Years Assisting J. Edgar Hoover and Serving as an FBI Special Agent
Hardcover * July 2021

RH
Nonfiction

The first book ever written about FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover by a member of his personal staff—his former assistant, Paul Letersky—The Director offers unprecedented insight into an American legend. In 1965, at the beginning of the chaos, twenty-two-year old Paul Letersky was assigned to assist the legendary FBI director J. Edgar Hoover who’d just turned seventy and had, by then, led the Bureau for an incredible forty-one years. Hoover was a rare and complex man who walked confidently among the most powerful. His personal privacy was more tightly guarded than the secret “files” he carefully collected—and that were so feared by politicians and celebrities. Since Hoover’s death half a century ago, millions of words have been written about the man and hundreds of hours of TV dramas and A-list Hollywood films produced. But until now, there has been virtually no account from someone who, for a period of years, spent hours with the Director on a daily basis. Balanced, honest, and keenly observed, The Director offers a unique inside look at one of the most powerful law enforcement figures in American history. Paul Letersky is a former FBI agent whose early service included two years working directly for FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as a personal assistant. Letersky would go on to become a Special Agent and participate in events that grabbed national headlines. After leaving the FBI, he became vice president of Pan American World Airways. Letersky lives in Oregon.

SEEING SERENA
Hardcover * June 2021

Nonfiction

A riveting chronicle of trailblazing tennis champion and cultural icon Serena Williams's turbulent 2019 tour season and a revealing portrait of who she is, both on and off the court. Serena Williams is an undisputed global sports celebrity. Ranked #12 on ESPN's 2018 World Fame 100 list of popular athletes, thirty-seven-year-old Serena Williams is the only female in the top 20, and she's one of the highest paid athletes in the world. The face of women's tennis for the past two decades, Serena is now waging battles on multiple fronts—against age, injuries, and opponents almost twenty years her junior, all while juggling her responsibilities as a new mom. Seeing Serena is an in-depth chronicle of Serena Williams' return to tennis after giving birth to her daughter, and an insightful cultural analysis of the most consequential female athlete of her time. Author Gerald Marzorati writes about her tennis and her forays into fashion, investing, and developing her personal brand on social media. Seeing Serena illuminates Williams's singular status as the greatest women's tennis player of all time and—in a moment when race and gender are the most talked-about topics—a pop icon like no other. Marzorati is on the scene, observing her matches, and talking to her, her coach, her competitors, and former greats who have witnessed her for years. He observes her, listens to her, studies her, explores her roles in society and history—sees Serena fully, in all the ways she has come to matter. Gerald Marzorati was the editor of The New York Times Magazine from 2003 until 2010. He previously worked as an editor at Harper's magazine and The New Yorker. He is the author of Seeing Serena, Late to the Ball, and A Painter of Darkness, which won the PEN/Martha Albrand Award for a first book of nonfiction. His writing about tennis has appeared in The New York Times and on NewYorker.com.

CHIP WAR: How the World's Most Critical Technology Reset the Balance of Power, Accelerated Globalization, and Will Determine Who Controls the Future
Hardcover * Fall 2022

RH
Nonfiction

Power in the modern world—military, economic, geopolitical—is built on a foundation of computer chips. America has maintained its lead as a superpower only because it has dominated advances in computer chips and all the technology that chips have enabled. (Virtually everything runs on chips: cars, i-phones, the stock market, even the electric grid.) Now America's edge is in danger of slipping, undermined by the naïve assumption that globalizing the chip industry and letting players in Taiwan, Korea, and Europe take over manufacturing serves America's interests. Currently, as Chip War reveals, China, which spends as much on chips as it sells of any other product, is pouring billions into a chip-building Manhattan Project to catch up to the U.S. At stake is America's military superiority and economic prosperity. In Chip War, historian Chris Miller recounts the fascinating sequence of events that led from the United States' perfecting the chip design, to promoting their use in everything from artificial intelligence to armed drones, and then, slowly but surely, letting key components of the chip-building process out of its grasp. Chip War argues that we can't make sense of politics, economics, or technology today without first understanding the central role played by chips in shaping the modern world. Chris Miller, a faculty member at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Director at geopolitical consultancy Greenmantle, and contributor to The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal, offers an epic account of the past, present, and future of the computer chip, in the tradition of Daniel Yergin's The Prize (sold in 21 international markets) with its warning about future jostling for resource supremacy.

SINATRA AND ME: In the Wee Small Hours

RH

Hardcover * June 2021

Nonfiction

More than a hundred books have been written about legendary crooner and actor Frank Sinatra. Every detail of his life seems to captivate: his career, his romantic relationships, his personality, his businesses, his style. But a hard-to-pin-down quality has always clung to the man certain elusiveness that emerges again and again in retrospective depictions. Until now. From Sinatra's closest confidant and an eventual member of his management team, Tony Oppedisano, comes an extraordinarily intimate look at the singing idol. Deep into the night, for more than two thousand nights, Frank and Tony would converse about music, family, friends, great loves, achievements and successes, failures and disappointments, the lives they'd led, the lives they wished they'd led. In these full-disclosure conversations, Sinatra spoke of his close yet complex relationship with his father, his conflicts with record companies, his carousing in Vegas, his love affairs with some of the most beautiful women of his era, his triumphs on some of the world's biggest stages, his complicated relationships with his talented children, and, most important, his dedication to his craft. Toward the end, no one was closer to the singer than Oppedisano, who kept his own rooms at the Sinatra residences for many years, often brokered difficult conversations between family members, and held the superstar entertainer's hand when he drew his last breath.

Featuring never-before-seen photos and offering startlingly fresh anecdotes and new revelations that center on some of the most famous people of the past fifty years including Jackie Kennedy, Marilyn Monroe, Sam Giancana, Madonna, and Bono, Sinatra and Me pulls back the curtain to reveal a man whom history has, in many ways, gotten wrong. Tony Oppedisano aka Tony O is a former professional musician and singer who went on to become an award-winning producer and personal manager to entertainment icons was only twenty-one years old. He later became Sinatra's best friend and road manager, a contributor to two of the singer's platinum albums, and a producer of the documentary "To Be Frank: Sinatra at 100".

BLINDFOLD is an account of 22 months in captivity in Syria at the hands of the Syrian al Qaeda affiliate, Jebhat al Nusra. It describes why Theo went to Syria in the first place, how the war has changed the psychology of the nation and how the war changed Theo. The uniqueness of this book lies in the length of time he spent with al Qaeda. No other journalist has lived among terrorists as long as Theo has and survived. The result is a portrait of a society adrift amid barrel bombings, summary executions, torture, prayer, fasting, and exhibitions, staged by the terrorists. As a resident of 13 separate prisons in every part of rebel-occupied Syria, Theo lived within this tide of violence. It changed his personal identity and his understanding of how to live.

Theo Padnos is the author of Undercover Muslim, which explored everyday life among westerners as they studied in Yemen's religious academies. He was held prisoner by the Syrian al Qaeda affiliate, Jebhat al Nusra, between 2012 and 2014. A documentary film called Theo Who Lived, about his experiences with Jebhat al Nusra, was released in 2016.

Nonfiction

On an Arctic expedition in 1596—"the first true polar voyage ever made"—Dutch navigator William Barents sailed from Amsterdam in search of a northeast trade route to China. Skirting the Scandinavian coastline that May on his third attempt to find navigable waters, he left the safety of the continent for the mysteries of the far North and the open sea he hoped to discover there. Catastrophe struck when they found themselves trapped, icebound in the high Arctic, and the crew was subjected them to horrific suffering that also changed history. Expanding the edges of the mapped world, making scientific discoveries, and inspiring countless explorers who followed in their wake, Barents and those who sailed with him influenced the search for commerce and shaped the path of colonialism engulfing the globe. The modern world is still buffeted by the historical tides unleashed in his era. Icebound will narrate the deadly challenges facing the sailors on Barents' three expeditions and their place in history. The details of these exploits faded from public memory over time until they became footnotes in tales of later expeditions, and the literary references were forgotten. Icebound will exhume the story. Andrea Pitzer is a journalist who loves to unearth lost history and the author of One Long Night and The Secret History of Vladimir Nabokov. THE BONE CODE: A Temperance Brennan Novel

RH
Fiction

A storm has hit South Carolina, dredging up crimes of the past. En route to Isle of Palms, a barrier island off the South Carolina coast, forensic anthropologist Temperance Brennan receives a call from the Charleston coroner. During the storm, a medical waste container has washed up on the beach. Inside are two decomposed bodies wrapped in plastic sheeting and bound with electrical wire. Chillingly, Tempe recognizes many details as identical to those of an unsolved case she handled in Quebec fifteen earlier. With a growing sense of foreboding, she flies to Montreal to gather evidence and convince her boss Pierre LaManch to reopen the cold case. She also seeks the advice and comfort of her longtime beau Andrew Ryan. Meanwhile, a storm of a different type gathers force in South Carolina. The citizens of Charleston are struck by capnocytophaga, a bacterium that, at its worst, can eat human flesh. Shockingly, Tempe eventually deduces not only that the victims in both grisly murder cases are related, but that the murders and the disease outbreak also have a common cause. Kathy Reichs' first novel Deja Dead was a #1 New York Times bestseller and won the 1997 Ellis Award for Best First Novel. The Bone Code is Kathy's twentieth entry in her series featuring forensic anthropologist Temperance Brennan. Kathy was also a producer of the hit Fox TV series, Bones, which is based on her work and her novels. Dr. Reichs is one of very few forensic anthropologists certified by the American Board of Forensic Anthropology. She served on the Board of Directors and as Vice President of both the American Academy of Forensic Sciences and the American Board of Forensic Anthropology, and as a member of the National Police Services Advisory Council in Canada. Nonfiction

LOVE'S WARRIORS is the story of the Sacred Band, an elite battalion of 150 pairs of male lovers, and their role in Thebes's fight against the tyranny of another Greek city-state: Sparta, who at that time dominated Greece with their military power. The tale begins in 379 BC, with a group of rebels sneaking into occupied Thebes, disguised in women's clothing, and slaughtering their Spartan overlords, and ends in 338 BC, when the Sacred Band was annihilated by Philip II's soldiers in the Battle of Charonea -- extinguishing democracy in Greece for two thousand years. This history of the Sacred Band is also the history of a period of Theban democracy, of power struggles between the three most prominent city-states, of the changing meaning of Eros in the ancient world. A dramatic retelling of violent battles and major shifts in rule, Love's Warriors is a compelling, cinematic deep-dive into the last days of ancient Greek freedom. COUNT DOWN: How Our Modern World is Threatening Sperm Counts, Altering Male and Female Reproductive Development, and Imperiling the Future of the Human Race

Hardcover * February 2021

RH
Nonfiction

In A Dangerous Decline, Dr. Swan, a world-renowned scientist who has been studying the effects of environmental influences on human reproductive development and health for more than two decades, explores the implications of a 2017 study she published that drew global attention. Ranked #26 among all referenced scientific papers ever published worldwide, "Temporal Trends in Sperm Count: A Systematic Review and Meta-Regression Analysis" tracked global decline in male fertility since 1973. Between 1973 and 2011, sperm concentration dropped more than 52% among men in Western countries and the total sperm count fell by more than 59%. These conclusions were drawn after examining the findings from 185 studies in a 38-year period. It included ordinary, everyday men, and while there was much less data from men from South America, Asia, and Africa, recent statistics indicate to a decline in those countries as well. Swan claims that we're in the midst of a sperm-decline crisis that threatens to foil fertility, put our collective fecundity on notice, and endanger the health of the planet. The questions it raises are without easy answers, and the implications extend far beyond the stuff of dystopian science fiction. Shanna H. Swan, Ph.D., is one of the leading environmental and reproductive epidemiologists in the world, a professor of environmental health, and an award-winning scientist whose work examines the impact of environmental exposures on reproductive health and the neurodevelopment of children. She's published more than 200 scientific papers and myriad book chapters and has been featured in extensive media coverage around the world. THE STAR BUILDERS: Nuclear Fusion and the Race to Power the Planet

Hardcover * August 2021

RH

Nonfiction

All across the world teams of scientists are being assembled at great expense by governments, research universities, and venture capital firms to solve what is the most difficult technological challenge mankind has ever faced: building the equivalent of a star on earth. If the researchers are successful in creating a process of controlled fusion in which atoms of hydrogen are heated to temperatures as high as 100 million degrees, ionized into a plasma, then, for several instants, held together, a stream of energy will be created that is so powerful it can potentially be a source of inexhaustible energy. Not only could controlled fusion eliminate the need for fossil fuels and immediately solve the climate crisis, it could help realize other long-dreamed-of aims like journeying to the stars. With the environmental stakes steadily rising in the last forty years, and laser and magnetic field technology ramping up, there is high confidence that the fusion puzzle will soon be solved. In The Star Builders, Arthur Turrell, an award-winning young plasma physicist who possesses a unique ability to render complicated science understandable, offers a quick history of fusion then introduces us to the leading fusion teams as they race to cross the finish line. As regards the exotic machines they've built: some have ten times the number of parts as the NASA Space Shuttle and some are enormously large, extending over 400 acres. Subsidizing these modern-day Manhattan projects are firms like Goldman Sachs and Google, universities like Oxford and MIT, international consortiums, and big dreaming entrepreneurs like Jeff Bezos and Peter Thiel. It's a race that, when it's completed, will make all of us winners. From front page of New York Times business section, May 13, 2019: "Fusion is now attracting science-minded entrepreneurs and investors willing to make a long bet. They see small companies as more nimble than government-funded behemoths. They are sensitive to rising alarms over the impact of climate change. They want to create a power source with enviable possibilities: millions of times the energy potential of oil and gas and substantially more than nuclear power, without the carbon emissions of fossil fuels. Fusion proponents also say that it is free of most of the risks of contemporary nuclear plants which are powered by splitting, not joining, atoms and that it has advantages over wind and solar, whose output is variable and whose turbines and panels require enormous space. 'There is no doubt in my mind that humanity will eventually succeed in making fusion energy happen,' said Robin Grimes, a professor of physics at Imperial College, a public research university in London. 'We've got no choice.'" Arthur Turrell has a PhD in plasma physics from Imperial College London and is the recipient of the Rutherford Prize for the Public Understanding of Plasma Physics. His research and writing has been featured in The Daily Mail, The Guardian, the International Business Times, Gizmodo and other general audience publications. He also works as a Senior Economist for the Bank of England where he is applying his scientific training to questions about the macro-economy. As a visiting scientist, he retains close links with the plasma physics group at Imperial College London.

Wickenden, Dorothy

THE AGITATORS: Three Friends Who Fought for Abolition and Women's Rights NG
Hardcover * March 2021 Nonfiction

From the intimate perspective of three friends and neighbors in Auburn, New York -- the seemingly ordinary women who are the; agitators; of the title -- acclaimed author Dorothy Wickenden tells the fascinating and crucial American stories of abolitionism, the Underground Railroad, women's rights activism, and the Civil War. Harriet Tubman, no-nonsense, funny, uncannily prescient, and strategically brilliant (though illiterate), was one of the most important conductors on the Underground Railroad and hid slaves in the basement kitchens of the middle-class Quaker mother of six, Martha Wright, and socially prominent Frances Seward (the wife of Secretary of State Seward). Harriet worked as a nurse and spy, and took part in a river raid in which 800 slaves were freed from rice plantations. At the time, Frances was giving fugitive slaves money and referrals and education assistance; and Martha facing down jeering mobs--was traveling around New York with Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, advocating women's rights and criticizing Lincoln's and Seward's--policy on slavery. The Agitators is brilliant and compelling micro-macro history. Many of the most famous figures are seen through the discerning eyes of the protagonists. So are the most explosive political debates: about women's roles and rights during the abolition crusade, emancipation, the arming of black troops, the true meaning of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Beginning in 1846, when the central protagonists were young women bound by law and tradition, the books ends twenty years later in a radically-changed United States. Wickenden brings this extraordinary period of our history to life through the rich detail in letters her characters wrote nearly every day. Like Doris Kearns Goodwin's No Ordinary Time or David McCullough's John Adams, The Agitators is a masterful amateur history, revelatory and riveting. Dorothy Wickenden has been the executive editor of The New Yorker since January 1996. She also writes for the magazine and is the moderator of its weekly podcast "The Political Scene". She is on the faculty of The Writers; Institute at CUNY's Graduate Center, where she teaches a course on narrative nonfiction. Her first book, Nothing Daunted, was a highly acclaimed New York Times bestseller.
