

RECLAM Frühjahr 2020 – Foreign Rights List

Ernst Hofacker: The Seventies. The Sound of a Decade

[German title: Die 70er. Der Sound eines Jahrzehnts] 300 pages. Illustrations. Hardcover

The seventies were a momentous decade for pop music and full of innovation. Very different genres such as glam rock, punk, reggae and heavy metal originated in the seventies as well as Krautrock, electropop, disco or hip-hop. Ernst Hofacker unfolds the seventies' pop-cultural complexity, starting out from ten specific dates from the Kent State massacre on May 4th 1970 up to the election of Maggie Thatcher as British Prime Minister in May 3rd 1978. He describes the development of musical trends and their counter movements, points out their social background and follows their influence up to the present.

Ernst Hofacker (* 1957) is a music journalist and author, awarded with the prize »Karl-Theodor-Vogel-Preis« for specialized journalism in 2013.

Martin Geck: Listening to Beethoven

[German title: Beethoven hören. Wenn Geistesblitze geheiligte Formen zertrümmern] 176 pages. With several musical examples

Martin Geck – »doyen of musicology« according to the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, one of Germany's leading newspapers – approaches Beethoven's genius not through his biography, but through selected works, from string quartets and piano sonatas to the great symphonies. He focuses on the musical structures in Beethoven's works and portrays the great composer as a fierce and at the same time vulnerable soul. A book for Beethoven connoisseurs! Martin Geck is a professor for Musicology at the University of Dortmund. With his books on music history and biographies of great composers, he has reached a wide public. His Beethoven biography was unanimously acclaimed by critics as the »great book of a great musicologist« (SWR2).

Peter Kemper: Eric Clapton and the Blues. A Biography

[German title: Eric Clapton. Ein Leben für den Blues] 260 pages + 25 ILL

Peter Kemper's portrait of Eric Clapton does not simply recite biographical facts, but takes a close look at Clapton's social circumstances. How does a skinny white boy in post-war England come to devote himself to the blues? How did he rise to fame? What helped him overcome his drug consumption? And what was behind his Birmingham hate speech against people of colour? Peter Kemper provides profound answers for fans and the curious alike.

Peter Kemper (* 1950) is a print and radio journalist as well as an author who has published several books with Reclam, e. g. The Beatles (2013).

Wolfgang Benz: The resistance group »Onkel Emil« in Nazi Germany

[German title: Protest und Menschlichkeit. Die Widerstandsgruppe »Onkel Emil« im Nationalsozialismus] 220 pages. With photos

In 1938, the journalist Ruth Andreas-Friedrich and the conductor Leo Borchard decided to resist the Nazi regime. Their resistance group existed in Berlin until Borchard's death in 1945 and later became known under the name »Onkel Emil«, which was their secret password. The group provided food, quarters, and papers for politically persecuted Jews. It also collaborated with the White Rose, whose leaflets it distributed in Berlin. Against the background of the persecution of Jews in the Third Reich, Wolfgang Benz tells the moving story of a small group of people who stood up for others at the risk of their own lives. Wolfgang Benz (* 1941), is a contemporary historian and professor emeritus of the Technical University of Berlin. He headed the Center for Research on Anti-Semitism in Berlin until 2011. Reclam's most recent publication was »Die Weiße Rose. 100 pages«.

Luise Sammann: Turkey between democracy and dictatorship

[German title: Großmachtträume. Die Türkei zwischen Demokratie und Diktatur] 200 pages

Turkey has a problem with democracy, and that is not only because of president Recep Tayyip Erdoğan. The fact that Turkish voters have a deep-rooted preference for strong, charismatic leaders has social and historical reasons dating back to the Ottoman Empire. Only if these deeper causes are understood can Turkey's democratization make progress. The journalist Luise Sammann (* 1985) worked as a foreign correspondent in Istanbul between from 2009 till 2018.

Ingo Reuter: The End of the World. The Purpose of Apocalyptic Narratives

[German title: Weltuntergänge. Vom Sinn der Endzeit-Erzählungen] 64 pages, Paperback

The end is near – it always has been. Ingo Reuter explains why stories of doom have always been in demand and what they can achieve. Using end-of-world narratives from biblical times to the present, but also films and video games, Reuter shows why mankind cannot do without imaginary apocalypse.

Ingo Reuter (* 1968) is a Professor of Religious Education and Practical Theology at the University of Paderborn and also author of The Walking Dead – Survival in the worst of all possible worlds.

Sascha Michel: What Reading Does for Us

[German title: Die Unruhe der Bücher. Vom Lesen und was es mit uns macht] 96 pages, Paperback

When it comes to reading and its benefits, people often speak of contemplation, books are considered to be retreats for the soul. This turns the uniqueness of reading into something arbitrary. After all, the opposite is true: as readers we participate in the world and sharpen our awareness of ambiguities of all kinds. A wise and passionate essay for all book people who like to reflect on the powers of reading. Sascha Michel (* 1970) is a literary scholar, he lives and works as an editor in Frankfurt am Main.

Dustin Breitenwischer: The most influential hip hop albums

[German title: Basis-Diskothek Hip-Hop] 200 pages, Paperback

In den letzten vier Jahrzehnten hat sich Hip-Hop zu einem vitalen Genre mit immenser Bandbreite entwickelt. Hip-Hop ist die globale Popmusik schlechthin. Dieser Band stellt epochale Alben vor und verortet sie kulturhistorisch – von 1980 bis heute, von der Sugarhill Gang bis zu Kendrick Lamar und von Advanced Chemistry bis zu Haftbefehl. Ein unverzichtbarer Guide, der zum Nachhören und Erkunden einlädt. Dustin Breitenwischer, geb. 1983, ist Amerikanist und forscht derzeit an der FU Berlin.

Peter Lieb: The Battle of Berlin

[German title: Die Schlacht um Berlin 1945] 160 pages. 60 Illustrations, 7 maps.

2020: 75 Jahre Ende des Zweiten Weltkriegs und Befreiung vom Nationalsozialismus

Am 12. Januar 1945 begann die Rote Armee ihre lang erwartete Großoffensive gegen das nationalsozialistische Deutsche Reich. Obwohl längst keine Hoffnung auf einen Sieg mehr bestand und sie weit unterlegen waren, leisteten die Wehrmacht vielerorts verbissen Widerstand. Die Schlacht um die Hauptstadt Berlin dauerte gut zwei Wochen. Am 2. Mai hissten schließlich Soldaten der Roten Armee die sowjetische Flagge über dem Reichstag. Wie in einem Brennglas bündelte sich in diesen letzten Monaten noch einmal die gewaltige Vernichtungskraft des von Adolf Hitler ausgelösten Kriegs. Peter Lieb, geb. 1974, ist Historiker am Zentrum für Militärgeschichte und Sozialwissenschaften der Bundeswehr in Potsdam.

Michael Epkenhans: Der Deutsch-Französische Krieg 1870/71 160 S. zahlr. Farbabb. und Karten

Überall in Deutschland erinnern Denkmäler an die Gefallenen des Deutsch-Französischen Krieges von 1870/71. Dieser Konflikt war die Geburtsstunde des Deutschen Reiches, das symbolträchtig im Spiegelsaal von Versailles proklamiert wurde. Mit der Reichsgründung erfüllte sich für viele der alte Traum eines einheitlichen Nationalstaates; sie veränderte die Machtverhältnisse auf dem europäischen Kontinent nachhaltig. Dieser Band zeichnet Vorgeschichte, Verlauf und Folgen dieses Krieges aus deutscher und französischer Perspektive nach. Michael Epkenhans, geb. 1955, ist Leitender Wissenschaftler im Zentrum für Militärgeschichte und Sozialwissenschaften der Bundeswehr in Potsdam. Bei Reclam erschien zuletzt Die Wehrmacht – Krieg und Verbrechen (zus. mit John Zimmermann).

Maxim Biller: Essays on Germany and Literature

[German title: Wer nichts glaubt, schreibt. Essays über Deutschland und die Literatur] 240 pages. Paperback

In this representative selection of essays from the last three decades, Maxim Biller examines German, Jewish and American literature as well as German society, politics and history. In their timeless validity, stylistic brilliance and argumentative force, they have had and continue to have a decisive influence on the genre in German-language literature.

Michael Felten: The Importance of Positive Student-Teacher Relationships

[German title: Unterricht ist Beziehungssache] 100 pages. Paperback (Reclam Universal-Bibliothek)

Good student-teacher relationships are the key to better test results for pupils, a positive classroom atmosphere and a more satisfying teaching experience. In fact, the student-teacher relationship is the central element of all educational success, as latest research has shown. Michael Felten draws on his many years of personal experience and explains how all aspects of school life can be organized for the benefit of student-teacher relationships.

Michael Felten, secondary school teacher in Cologne, temporary lecturer at the Heidelberg University of Education and the University of Bonn, expert in teacher training and education, author and journalist.

Christine Garbe: Improving Reading Skills in Secondary Schools [German title: Lesekompetenz fördern] 100 pages. Paperback (Reclam Universal-Bibliothek)

Reading is the basic educational skill. The promotion of reading skills is no longer a task restricted to primary school but important throughout all levels of education. How can reading comprehension, fluency and motivation be improved? Why is gender sensitivity important? And how can the promotion of reading skills be systematically integrated into school development? Christine Garbe answers these questions based on latest research and provides helpful advice for the classroom.

Christine Garbe was a professor for German Literature at the University of Cologne, with a special focus on the reading and media socialization of children and young adults. She is an expert for the promotion of reading skills and started a website dedicated to improve the reading skills of boys (www.boysandbooks.de).

Yomb May: Periods of German Literature

[German title: Epochen der deutschsprachigen Literatur] 100 pages

Everything you need to know about the different periods of German literature from the 17th century up to the present: Well structured, comprehensive information on all the most important authors and works as well as the historical context. Illustrations, diagrams and a timeline provide a quick overview.

Dr. Yomb May is a professor for Intercultural German Studies at the University of Bayreuth.

Peter Michalzik: Money and poetry. Hölderlin, Suzette und Jakob Gontard

[German title: Der Dichter und der Banker. Hölderlin, Suzette und Jakob Gontard] 120 pages

In 1796 Friedrich Hölderlin assumed a position as tutor to the son of banker Jakob Gontard in Frankfurt, who introduced the poet to the world of finance. Hölderlin became part of the household and was very attached to Gontard's wife Suzette. The figure of Diotima in Hölderlin's novel Hyperion is modelled after Suzette. But what relationship did Suzette and Hölderlin really have? And why did Hölderlin have to leave the house and Frankfurt only a few years later? Peter Michalzik has written a gripping biography as well as a far-sighted narrative about the relationship between art and economy.

Peter Michalzik (* 1963) is a visiting professor at Frankfurt University of Music and Performing Arts. He is the author of several biographies. His last publication was 1900: Vegetarier, Künstler und Visionäre suchen nach dem neuen Paradies.

Pioneers of democracy and freedom of the press Edited by Michael Haller and Walter Hömberg, PP 272

[German title: »Ich lass mir den Mund nicht verbieten«. Wegbereiter der Demokratie und Pressefreiheit]

Freedom of speech and freedom of the press are among the most valuable achievements of our democracy. For a long time, it seemed utopian that they could ever become fundamental rights. Journalists and committed publicists played an important part in the struggle to obtain these rights. In 60 key moments, scenes and portraits, this book tells the gripping story of the pioneers of our open society – great moments in journalism from the 18th to the end of the 20th century.

Michael Haller (* 1945) worked as an editor for the news magazine Spiegel and as a head of department for the weekly newspaper Die Zeit, before taking over the chair of journalism at the University of Leipzig.

Walter Hömberg (* 1944) is a visiting professor at the University of Vienna.

100 Seiten Frühling 2020

Stefan Siegert: Beethoven. 100 Seiten

Everything you need to know about Ludwig van Beethoven! Stefan Siegert provides information on the personal as well as the creative life of the great composer on only 100 pages. He portrays Beethoven as a son, brother, lover, as a fierce and doubtful artist, but above all as a child of the revolution that changed the world with his music. Stefan Siegert works as a freelance author with a focus on classical music for radio, print and online media.

Micha Brumlik: Antisemitismus. 100 Seiten

The problem of antisemitism is growing today – and it goes back hundreds of years. Micha Brumlik surveys the history of antisemitism from pre-Christian times through the middle ages up to the Shoah and today's Islamist antisemitism and analyses recent tendencies. Finally, he develops strategies for fighting antisemitism today. »Jews have always been subjected to hate for religious, ideological or political reasons«, Brumlik says, »We need to know about these alleged reasons and the underlying stereotype way of thinking«.

Micha Brumlik (* 1947) is a professor emeritus at Goethe University Frankfurt and Senior Advisor at the Selma Stern Center for Jewish Studies Berlin-Brandenburg. He is widely renowned for his research on Jewish history and antisemitism.

Helmut Reinalter: Geheimbünde. 100 Seiten

Secret societies like the Illuminati, the Freemasons or the Mafia are very well represented in films, literature and popular culture. Helmut Reinalter explores the most important secret societies from the past and present, clearing up widespread myths and explaining why conspiracy theories are still in vogue today. Helmut Reinalter (* 1943) is Professor emeritus of History at the University of Innsbruck and head of the private Institute for the History of Ideas. In 2018 his Handbook of Conspiracy Theories was published.

Gunter Gebauer: Olympic Games. 100 Seiten

When the Olympic Games are held in Tokyo in July 2020, billions of people around the world will be watching. But what is the »Olympic idea« all about? And do the modern and ancient games still have anything in common? Gunter Gebauer gives an overview of the Olympic Games from antiquity up to the present without ignoring the downsides such as political appropriation or doping.

Alexander Kluy: Clint Eastwood. 100 Seiten

Clint Eastwood's filmography reflects over half a century of film history. A celebrated director, he created great American stories for the big screen. Alexander Kluy tells Clint Eastwood's story in a light and entertaining way, following his career from his first major role in the western series Rawhide to his most recent directing and acting triumphs. Alexander Kluy (* 1966) is a journalist, author and editor of numerous books. His most recent publication with Reclam was Alfred Hitchcock. 100 Seiten.

Dietmar Dath: Hegel. 100 Seiten

Hegel was full of contradictions and taught contradiction as a fundamental principle of thought. This book does not want to resolve these contradictions, but to conceptualize them and make them comprehensible. Dietmar Dath (* 1970) is a journalist and author of novels, stories, plays and non-fiction.

Jens Wietschorke: 1920er. 100 Seiten

Where does the enthusiasm for Swing, Coco Chanel and Gatsby parties come from, for the Roaring Twenties with their music and their zeitgeist? Perhaps because the 1920s have a lot in common with the present – from the influence of the world economy on the lives of individuals or the importance of popular culture to growing political polarization. Jens Wietschorke explores the fascination of the 1920s and tells the story of an age in which the boldest dreams of modernity, the craving for pleasure, nostalgia and violence collided.

Jens Wietschorke (* 1978) teaches at the Institute for Empirical Cultural Studies and European Ethnology at the Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich. 2015 he published a book about cinema in Berlin 1900-1930 (Die Welt im Licht. Kino im Berliner Osten 1900–1930).

Franziska Torma: Wasser. 100 Seiten

Without water there is no life – this becomes clear in times of climate change. Mankind has always attempted to master this precious element and use for agriculture and technology as well as for transportation, sports or recreation. But what exactly is water? Why do we enjoy spending time by the sea, lakes and rivers so much? And how do we find a solution to the dramatically increasing shortage of water? Franziska Torma sums up the scientific, social, political and historical significance of water in a hundred pages. Franziska Torma, born in 1975, is a historian and researcher at the Rachel Carson Center of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität Munich.

Kurt Wallat: Archaeology. 100 Seiten

Kurt Wallat provides a pointed overview of the scientific discipline of archaeology and its methods – from underwater research to the evaluation of aerial photographs. He describes an excavation project in Pompeii and shows that archaeology makes an important contribution to humanity's self-perception by building a bridge into the past.